THE FINANCIAL doctors report that our poor American dollar yesterday, all over Europe, was "sinking rapidly." It is now lower in value than it has been in fifty years. Franc, pound sterling, Spanish peseta, etc., went up as the dollar went down.

While the United States lacks the good effects that would follow reasonable inflation, the outside world runs away from our money. The country might as well make up its mind to do something in the way of "reflation."

When Congress meets, it probably will do something, since an overwhelmingly majority of the congressmen favor what they inaccurately call "inflation."

AS OUR dollar goes down, gold goes up. England is buying it, paying a high premium. American producers of gold hope they will be permitted to sell their product wherever they please, at the world's market place.

Since Uncle Sam is off the gold basis, has billions of gold stored up, why should we hamper the man who has gold and wants to sell it?

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON HUTTON, who lives to save souls, is in New York, where many souls need saving.

When "Ben Hur" was revived in New York years ago, Billy Sunday, writing about it, said:

"There are more lepers on Broadway than there ever were in the Holy Land."

Mrs. Semple McPherson Hutton is looking for those lepers and will wash them, spiritually, whiter than snow.

She requested, and obtained, two little love birds to decorate her hotel bedroom. Mr. Hutton, who is "separated," will think about that, with tears in his eyes, let us hope.

MISS TEXAS GUINAN, who has followed other paths, is now preparing a "farewell tour in the sticks." She intends to start saving souls, also, just as soon as she can afford it. And when she stops saving souls, she will cultivate a little back garden and show people how to be happy in a simple way.

She should be a good revivalist because she could tell a wicked audience just what it had been doing, and how near hell is to bright lights. There is a lot in the old saying:

"The greater the sinner, the greater the saint."

COURTLAND SMITH, of New York, back from a trip through various countries of Europe, gives you this interesting information about the new method of telephoning in Germany.

A solemn German enters a telephone booth, begins the conversation: "Heil Hitler," "Hail Hitler," and after his talk remarks to the man at the other end again: "Heil Hitler," and goes his way.

Germans, the young especially, are described as wildly enthusiastic about Hitler, more so even than the Italians were after their dictator's first rise to power.

The question is, will Hitler turn out to be another Mussolini, or another Rienzi, who also rose to supreme power and came to an abrupt end. Look him up in your history for the facts, not in Wagner's opera about him.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES A. FARLEY, as busy a man as ever worked for this country, announces that five hundred million dollars have been cut from the nation's expenses since July 1, in comparison with the figure a year ago.

That is an interesting figure, when you remember that not very long ago, when Tom Reed was Speaker of the House, the government of the United States spent only five hundred million dollars in a year for its Army, Navy and everything else. Now New York City spends more than that.

COL. LINDBERGH, born in America, has visited the birthplace of his father in Sweden. His father was a good American citizen, a member of Congress. You know what Lindbergh is, what he has done for this country's reputation.

Under our present, viciously harmful immigration laws, Lindbergh's father could not have come to the United States, and there would not have been any Col. Lindbergh here.

MEN OF ambition and energy willing to cross the ocean, men and women that have created the United States in the past, have been shut out for the last ten years and more on the ground that to allow immigration might "hurt our prosperity."

Do you think our prosperity has been so remarkable since we made up our minds to keep out the men we need to give the country new blood and new energy? Texas could feed the earth's entire population.

IT IS well for human peace of mind that the average human being does not know how big the universe is, or how unimportant is this little grain of sand we call the earth.

An old lady, with great care, picks out the spot where she wants to lie in the cemetery, because:

"There I shall know all the people around me. In another part of the graveyard, I'd be among strangers."

Near Tucson, Ariz., Dr. Byron Cummings, of the University of Arizona archaeology department, finds "apartment houses" six hundred years old, built by Hopi Indians that buried very young children under the floor of their dwelling, so that the baby spirits could be near their mothers. The Hopis still continue that custom.

U.S. CHARGES DAVIS TOOK LOTTERY CUT

Moose 'Czar' Accused Of Profiting by $170,000

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The fireworks began popping today in the case of the government against United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh.

Both ears cocked, the Senator listened avidly as young Louis Treadwell, the government prosecutor, made these two charges:

1—Davis profited by more than $170,000 from two lotteries conducted by the Moose Order in 1930 and 1931.

2—Davis was the "Czar of the Order" and his motive in taking part in the lotteries was to make money.

Treadwell created a bit of a furor in court when, in addressing the jury, he produced two charts, the size of a window, which pretended to show the distribution of the $3,000,000 taken in by the two "lotteries."

Needless to say, the Senator's brackets on these charts were prominently displayed. Attorney Charles Tuttle, of counsel for Davis, vainly tried to keep them from the jury but the court overruled him.

The first chart represented Davis as taking in for himself some $130,000 from the first lottery and $40,000 from the second.

MINERS WAIT PLEA BY LEWIS

Union Head Urged to Address Rally in Coke Region

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Sept. 19.—While miners of the coke region continued their holiday today, despite signing of the coal code in Washington a movement was launched here to bring President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers into this district to address a mass meeting.

This suggestion was wired to Gov. Gifford Pinchot by Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, of Uniontown. The Governor said he would forward the invitation to Lewis.

Meanwhile the code policy to be adopted by the H. C. Frick Coke Company was held to be the crux of the coke region situation. Every Frick mine has been closed "indefinitely." In its various statements, there was no indication that the United States Steel Corporation's subsidiary had yielded in its determination that, under no circumstances, would it recognize the United Mine Workers.

FLOCK TO POLLS

Miners flocked to the polls today, but everywhere the paramount question was:

"What is Frick going to do?"

It was rumored that the Frick Company, with a nucleus of nonunion men from its various operations, might attempt to reopen one of its properties in accordance with terms of the code providing that employes shall have a union of "their own choosing."

Under such an arrangement, it is pointed out that the Frick interest might start a company union project with a view of stampeding the rank and file of the United Mine Workers. There has been mysterious activity around the various Frick plants in the past few days, but company men are keeping mum, and officials have nothing to say.

As an example of what might be expected, union observers point out, a nucleus of more than 300

The jury placed the costs on the borough of Ambridge. Caul claimed that he paid the money to the borough treasurer, but had not been given a receipt.

Friends of the Burgess staged a demonstration in the Courthouse when the verdict was announced.

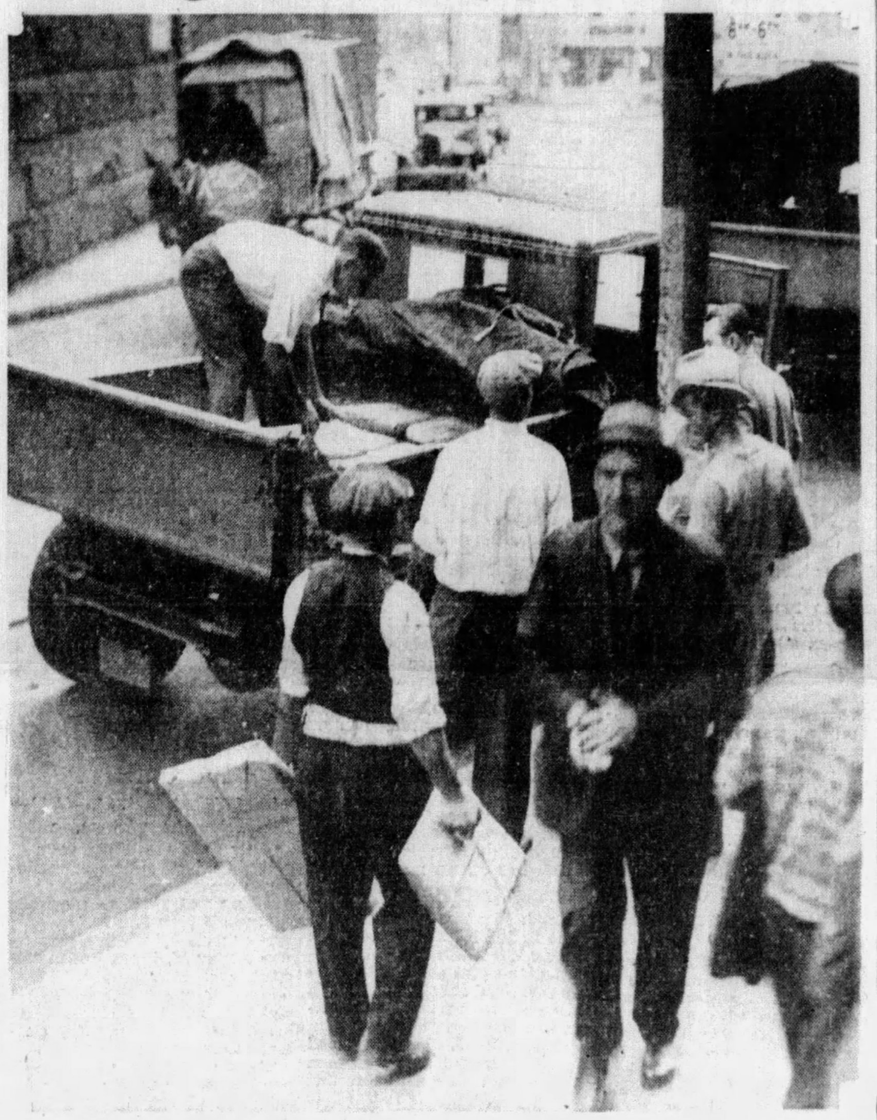
Rushing Ballots to Replace Machines



WORKMEN SENDING OUT BALLOTS BY TRUCKLOAD TO REPLACE BROKEN VOTE MACHINES

The activity at the county building today as ballots were rushed on court order to polling places in which voting machines were reported out of commission. Ballots also were sent other polling places to be ready "in case." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

CONFUSION AT POLLS; SABOTAGE CHARGED BY PROBER

These were the developments today as the County's demoralized election machinery was called into service for the primary:

1—Paper ballots were finally substituted for voting machines after the entire election machinery of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton was thrown into an uproar by the breakdown of the machines—due either to tampering or jamming by ignorant election boards.

2—Allegheny County's voters—510,000 are eligible—went to the polls in the County's hottest election in years to register their votes for their favorite candidates, with the Democratic primary assuming importance for the first time in years.

3—Fighting and bullying brought state and local police to a number of polling places as the heat of the campaign inflamed various party workers and stimulated flying fists. Police made arrests, principally for fighting.

Mayoralty Fight Holds Interest

Residents of Allegheny County went to the polls today to cast their ballots for favorite candidates in the county's hottest election fight in years.

In all, 510,000-odd were registered and qualified to vote.

Fair weather, warm and dry, was expected to bring out a large vote, some of which, however, was bound to be offset by the breakdown of voting machines in Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne.

PEAK OF INTEREST

The voting in Pittsburgh attained the peak of interest with five important mayoralty candidates running for nomination.

In the Republican primary, Mayor John S. Herron was the chief contender for the nomination, with Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell attempting to take it away from him.

The Democrats, too, were important in this primary for the first time in years. Their nomination was sought, in chief, by William N. McNair and by John M. Henry, both attorneys.

Other officials to be nominated included:

City and County joined in nominating men for three Common Pleas Court judgeships, two County Court judgeships, a sheriff, a coroner, a judge of Juvenile and a judge of Orphan

Court Orders Emergency Action

Judges James H. Gray and Ambrose B. Reid today ordered use of paper ballots as substitutes for or in conjunction with voting machines, following a breakdown of the machines that threw the primary election in Pittsburgh, Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport into indescribable confusion.

The judge's order came after the County Commissioners failed to act.

MACHINES SNARL

Voting machines in many districts throughout the four cities were broken down in such large numbers that cries of "sabotage" arose in many quarters.

Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank attributed half of the breakdowns to sabotage, half to the fact that election boards in the districts are "panicky."

County Investigator Leo Riordan attributed the failure to sabotage, in most instances.

Maj. William T. Rees, chief of the bureau of elections, blamed the trouble to "ignorance of election boards" who did not follow printed instructions.

Whatever the cause, it was sure that at least 10 per cent of the machines in the four cities failed to function and that thousands of voters were prevented from doing their bit for their favorite candidates during the morning hours.

The tie-up became so severe

Pinchot Votes Early, Hops on Fishing Trip

MILFORD, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Thrilled by the success of a recent fishing trip, Gov. Pinchot voted early in today's primary election and then took off by airplane for Block Island, R. I., for some more fishing.

On his flight, he planned to handle the controls. If he does it will not be his first experience, for he handled for a time the craft in which he flew to Washington last week.

MINER'S WAGES NEGOTIATED

Tentative schedules for the low volatile regions of West Virginia were announced as running from 37 cents per ton upward, with many differentials between districts and a provision for the payment of 6 cents per inch per linear yard for the removal of draw slate after the first four inches.

Negotiations also were going forward on the basic daily rates for the Alabama and Western Kentucky coal fields, not yet included in the code, with Southeastern Kentucky operators expressing vigorous opposition to a big differential between their rates and the Alabama rates, holding that they were in danger of losing

Code's Control Of Steel to Be Scanned by NRA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—NRA officials, probably including Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, probably will give the steel industry's operation under a code of fair competition its first official study.

Temporarily sidetracking the price control issues of the retail code, biggest immediate problem of the organization, the top men of the NRA will go to New York for a meeting with the board of directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute, which is the code authority for the industry.

Kenneth M. Simpson, deputy administrator in charge of metals and mining; Donald R. Richberg, the general counsel, and Dr. Alexander Sachs, chief economist, will go.

The NRA said it understood that original estimates that code operation would add $64,000,000 to the annual steel payrolls were proving too conservative and that the increase would be nearly $100,000,000 a year.

Since a preliminary meeting with officials several weeks ago, the steel institute has virtually revised sales and price procedure to bring prices from various types of mills to a uniform basis for like products.

For instance, plate, bar, strip and sheet mills hitherto have been turning out like products with different prices, while in the future strips turned out by a sheet mill, will sell at exactly the price for the same size strip turned out by any other kind of mill.

The NRA also pointed that under the self-governing provisions of the code, the steel men are abligated to give the industrial control official access to statistical and other records from which they will have an opportunity to analyze how satisfactorily the new method of operation is working out.

BRAWLS MARK BALLOTING

Intimidation of voters, threats and a free-for-all fight were some of the disturbances police reported today as the citizens of Pittsburgh were voting.

State police were called to the Seventh District of the Nineteenth Ward, Mt. Washington, and the Eighteenth District of the Fourth Ward, to quell disturbances caused, police say, when voters were intimidated.

Two men were arrested at Smallman and Twenty-fourth street for fighting which led to a free-for-all.

OFFICIAL ACCUSED

A warrant charging violation of the election laws was sworn out against David Good, judge of elections in the Seventh District, North Versailles township, by William Sturm, who charged that Good had refused to let him sit as majority inspector.

King Feisal's Heir To Marry Cousin

BAGDAD, Iraq., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Young King Ghazi, who succeeded his father, the late King Feisal, only 11 days ago, is engaged to marry his cousin, the Princess Aliyah, daughter of former King Ali of the Hedjaz.

The betrothal was celebrated last night at the palace. Political reasons, it was said, may have been responsible for the engagement so soon after the death of King Feisal.

Women Oust Preacher, Minus Suspenders

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—A new minister's attempt to occupy the pulpit of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle, scene of bitter intra-congregation strife for weeks, ended last night in his flight from an attacking group of women, minus his suspenders and Bible.

The Rev. Doc Applegate mounted the platform and announced he had been sent to preach in place of the Rev. Dale S. Crowley, one of the rivals for the pastorate.

Immediately, according to reports to officers today, 15 or 20 women members of the Rev. Joe Jeffers faction, in possession of the tabernacle, advanced upon him.

They seized Applegate, tore off his suspenders and part of his shirt and threw him off the platform, officers reported. He fled, leaving his suspenders and Bible behind.

Crowley, recognized by a Chancery Court order as the tabernacle pastor, has remained away from the building the past few weeks while members of the Jeffers faction held control.

Voters May Write Own Ballots, Lawyers Say

Some lawyers today declared the law permitted voters, held up by vote machine trouble to write their own ballots on their own paper and hand them to the election board.

They cited this:

"The provisions of the Voting Machine Act, April 18, 1929, P. L. 549, Section 22 (b), as amended by the act of June 23, 1931, P. L. 1185, Section 18 (b), are as follows:

"'If any voting machine being used in any election shall become out of order during such election, it shall, if possible, be repaired or another machine substituted by the custodian or County Commissioners as promptly as possible, for which purpose the County Commissioners may purchase as many extra voting machines as they may deem necessary.

"'But in case such repair or substitution cannot be made, paper ballots, printed or written, and of any suitable form, may be used for the taking of votes.'"

Important Notice To Election Boards

When the polls close for the primaries tonight, a representative of the Tristate Election Service will call upon you for election results. He will carry an identification card. He is an authorized collector of returns for the Pittsburgh newspapers.

Where vote machines are used, please give him a sheet from the machine when totals are pulled. Any other co-operation given will be greatly appreciated by THE EDITOR.

PAPER BALLOTS RUSHED AS VOTING MACHINES SNARL

Sabotage Plot Hinted As Complaints Pour in that Mayor John S. Herron, organization Republican candidate to succeed himself, made statements about having the whole election declared invalid. The statements were later withdrawn.

'SHAME,' SAYS LITTLE

Herron was supported by President Harry A. Little, of Council, who said:

"It's a shame. Half of the people won't be voting today."

As matters grew worse and trouble was reported from many districts in the city, District Attorney Andrew T. Park went before the judges to tell them that unless paper ballots were immediately forthcoming, there would be riots before the end of the day.

Herron then issued a statement accusing the County Commissioners of failing to have proper inspection of the voting machines and shunning the responsibility of their office.

As the clamor for paper ballots grew to fever heat, the judges—with obvious reluctance—drew up an order providing that Rees dispatch paper ballots at once to every district in which voting machines were used.

The ballots were to be used in every district: if a machine broke down, to replace the machine; if machines worked, to supplement them. The order read:

"It is ordered and directed that C. C. McGovern, C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield, County Commissioners of Allegheny County, forthwith deliver to the proper election officers of every election district of the city of Pittsburgh and the cities of Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport sufficient printed ballots to be used at the primary election this day being held as provided by law, provided, however, that in any district where the voting machine is in fit workable condition it must be used as well as such paper ballots as may be necessary so that the conduct of the election may be expedited and the electors be given every opportunity and aid in casting their votes."

JUDGES' ORDER

The judges' order followed Barr's refusal to act, on the ground that one of the Commissioners—Mansfield—was in McKeesport and he didn't know where McGovern could be found.

As stenographers hastened to type the order, Rees commandeered every available mimeographing machine in the county office buildings to run off copies of the order to be sent to every polling place affected, along with the paper ballots.

Trucks were drawn into the courtyard of the Courthouse loaded with ballots, waiting only for delivery of the court order.

Finally the entire fleet was rushed toward the polls.

Election boards each named two clerks to prepare and supervise the use of paper ballots.

Judges Reid and Gray explained the paper ballots can be used with voting machines that are functioning to make up for the loss of time earlier in the day. About 50 per cent of the machines that failed had been repaired by 1 p. m.

COMPLAINTS TO REES

Many ills affected the machines as the day progressed. Some of them, gleaned from reports and complaints made to Rees' staff, may be summarized as follows:

Malicious tampering with the machines, before delivery at the polls.

Disconnection, deliberate or accidental, of wires leading to the electric motor operating the machine. Floor plugs were pulled out, motors short circuited, fuses blown.

Ignorance of election officials, in spite of detailed instructions, in operation of the machines. In some instances, election boards forgot to remove the steel pin with which no machine can work.

A few genuine mechanical breakdowns.

Politicians from all over the city stormed the Bureau of Elections to complain of these flaws and accidents. Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the League of Women Voters, joined with Pat O'Malley, Second Ward leader, who had tears of despair in his eyes, in beseeching substitution of paper ballots.

MECHANICS SWAMPED

As many mechanics found themselves swamped with work and had, finally, to be traced by 50 other workers following them in taxicabs to give them further orders.

Solicitor Frank said:

"I think that about half the wards that are having trouble can blame it on a deliberate effort to decommission the machines, in the other half, it's just because of panicky election boards."

Rees said:

"The trouble was the ignorance of election boards, which did not follow the printed instructions. In one instance, when a voter pushed his first button the machine went crazy."

Albert Lauer, the county's vote machine expert, said:

"The majority of the trouble is due to the ignorance of custodians and inspectors at the polls and the fact that this is the first time the machines have been used.

"In many instances, the machine had not been opened properly by custodians and the seal had not been broken to permit it to work. There are many instances of electric plugs being pulled out; in others, paper rolls for the test were not properly torn out."

The Citizens League had a staff of 50 men investigating complaints of broken down voting machines. All complaints were being checked with an eye to possible fraud, the league officials said, but they had had not uncovered any specific evidence.

trict was taken before Judge Gray who ordered that Sturm be allowed to function. Later Sturm went before Alderman Thomas A. Flanagan, alleged that Good had disregarded Judge Gray's instructions, and made the information.

The same ward was the scene of an investigation into alleged fraudulent tax receipts, resulting in Alderman W. G. Headley holding a city policeman and another man pending a hearing Thursday night on charges of violating the election laws.

THREAT CHARGED

Joyce, 37, of 1513 Federal street, was arrested after he is alleged to have threatened an unidentified man with a revolver. Police say Joyce accused the "unknown" of tearing down his (Joyce's) political signs. Robert Mackhart, 32, of 12 Sampson street, and George Griffen, 39, of 19 Alyine avenue, were arrested with Joyce. All were charged with being suspicious persons.

Alderman Headley announced he was holding Patrolman Joseph Reindl, of 711 Columbia place, and Jesse Stackhouse, of 2149 Charles street, on bond of $2,500 pending hearings Thursday night in connection with an investigation into alleged fraudulent tax receipts.

Headley refused to say who made the charges against the two men. The Alderman declared that he "had to get out of the North Side" to get an officer to serve the warrants. They were served by Constable Alberta, of Greentree.

BALLOTS MISSING

A package of Democratic ballots for the Second District of the Twenty-second Ward, North Side, was either stolen or dropped from a truck making ballot deliveries from the Courthouse early today. According to a police report, the package was lost between the Courthouse and Reedsdale and Scotland streets.

After a free-for-all fight at the Twenty-fourth and Smallman street polling place, two men were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct. They gave their names as John Kopko, 30, of New Jersey, and Leo Hufnagle, 27, of 2415 Smallman street.

GUARD SHOOTS SELF

William Kowalis, 23, of 22 Fairmont street, Duquesne, a voting machine watchman, shot himself on the left hand with his own revolver while on duty in the polling place at Bayard School, Forty-eighth and Hatfield streets, last night. His index finger was shattered.

Police investigating the first "shooting" of the 1933 elections said Kowalis told them he had shot himself when he reached up to place the revolver on a shelf for safe keeping. The wound was treated at St. Francis Hospital.

Court, and Republican and Democratic jury commissioner.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Many complaints of improper conduct of the booths came from all sides of the city and county.

Meanwhile, further difficulty with the machines was reported as large numbers of persons asked for assistance in voting. The law provides that no assistance can be given a voter without an oath from him that he is physically disabled or cannot read.

OFFICIAL ARRESTED

Frank Keenan, judge of elections in the First District of the Second Ward, was arrested on information sworn out by Alderman Thomas Geary, charging him with giving assistance to voters without the prescribed oath.

Keenan told Judges Gray and Reid that he made voters swear, but he didn't know what they had to swear to. He was returned to his post, better instructed in the election laws.

The polling places opened at 8 a. m. and were to remain open until 8 tonight.

The much talked about "red ink session" of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission, during which it was reported that hundreds of names would be removed from the books, failed to materialize and only 19 names were cut from the books during the night. These 19 were dropped after three days of continual work.

Desiring to prevent any possible election cheating in the "suspected" districts, the elections bureau waited until dawn today before shipping the election material to certain sections of the county. A special squad of 30 men delivered ballots to Homestead, Braddock, Rankin and McKees Rocks, shortly before the polls opened today.

TROOPERS ON DUTY

Chairman John K. Morrow, of the Registration Commission, announced state police were on duty in the city again today, two squads being ordered to report to him. The troopers will protect the books of the commission being used throughout the day by the election boards.

Troopers were on duty in Homestead, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern having requested them in behalf of residents who said they had no assurance the election would be without rioting unless troopers were on duty.

More than 70,000 watchers are on duty throughout the county, that number of certificates having been issued yesterday. Each candidate is entitled to two watchers for each district.

FORD VET JOBS STIR DEBATE

International News Service.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—Charges that only members of the American Legion were being given the 5,000 jobs offered by the Ford Motor Company to Wayne County ex-service men, resulted today in Legion executives temporarily suspending acceptance of new members.

All former service men are being treated alike, said Commander Rex Humphrey, who became an employment czar when Ford Company officials put him in charge of selecting 5,000 ex-soldiers for the jobs. He wired all county Legion posts:

"No new applications for memberships will be accepted in Wayne County until the Legion has completed filling the Ford jobs."

STATE WATCHES GAINS MADE BY DEMOCRATS

Primary Results Have Bearing on Senate Race Next Year

HARRISBURG, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—With the unofficial Democratic registration total above the million mark for the first time in history, Pennsylvania voters today select candidates for a host of municipal offices, but chief interest lies in the primary's possible effect on next year's general election.

No statewide contests are involved in today's voting, but intense factional fights in some cities and the growing strength of the Democratic party in this stronghold of Republicans have attracted considerable attention.

FACTIONAL FIGHTS

Prominent in the most bitter fights are those for major party nominations in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton and Wilkes Barre, and in Luzerne, Delaware and Allegheny counties.

In Philadelphia, the spotlight is focused on the offensives directed against the strongly entrenched Republican organization, headed by William S. Vare, and the leadership of John O'Donnell, Democratic chairman, accused by state leaders of his party of being too friendly with Vare.

Centered in a fight for sheriff, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired Marine, is leading an attack against the Delaware County Republican organization of State Senator John J. McClure. Butler last year was supported by Gov. Pinchot in the United States Senatorial race.

PINCHOT MOVES

Pinchot Republicans also are backing Stanley Yetter for the Republican mayoralty nomination in Wilkes-Barre, with anti-Pinchot forces behind the incumbent, Charles N. Loveland.

These fights and similar contests are expected to disclose how the Republican organizations have weathered the Democratic attack of the last presidential campaign. Political observers also look to today's voting for an indication of Gov. Pinchot's probable fate should he run for the United States Senate next year.

PRIMARY TESTS TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The Tammany wigwam, a bit teeter-y from the biting gales of Seabury investigations, stood today in the path of what one of its foes predicted would be a cyclone that would blow it over.

The "cyclone," which Congressman Loring M. Black has prophecied, must strike—if it strikes—in the six-hour period between 3 and 9 p. m. It is during these hours that today's primary election voting takes place.

The contest for the Democratic nomination for mayor is the focal point of vote interest. New York's 60-year-old Mayor, John P. O'Brien, backed by Tammany, is challenged by Congressman Black and Assemblyman Jerome G. Ambro.

All three voiced confidence of nomination.

The Republicans, who are outnumbered three to one in the registered voting strength of the city, had no contests. F. H. LaGuardia, former Congressman, was unopposed for the mayoralty nomination.

The only sign of excitement among Republicans today was in a fight to unseat Samuel F. Koenig, who for 22 years has been Republican leader in New York County.

Roosevelt Again Kept in by Cold

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt remained away from his desk again today under doctor's orders because of continuation of a slight temperature.

A cold which kept him at home yesterday has cleared up, but with a fraction of a temperature showing, Lieut. Com. Ross T. McIntire, naval physician, thought it best for the President to take it easy.

America, Japan and Peace in the Pacific

On August 30th the Hearst newspapers published a signed editorial by William Randolph Hearst, entitled "only preparedness will prevent war" and calling attention to Japan's "permanent occupancy" of mid-Pacific islands which form a "strategic wedge" between Hawaii and the Philippines, capable of being fortified into naval bases.

Mr. Hearst's editorial was immediately re-published in full in Japan, where it aroused "much comment, as well as considerable doubt," in the words of Yasuo Fuwa, New York correspondent of the Japanese newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun.

Mr. Fuwa, on behalf of his newspaper, asked Mr. Hearst for a further statement, which was printed yesterday in Japan by the Yomiuri Shimbun. Following is its complete text.

LOS ANGELES, September 15, 1933.

MR. YASUO FUWA,
Correspondent Yomiuri Shimbun,
Care Japanese Times, 12 West Seventeenth Street, New York.

DEAR SIR:

I THINK my article speaks for itself and needs no special explanations. It is not hostile to Japan. It is, I hope, patriotically considerate of the United States—my country. I am an American—nothing else.

However, I can be that and still think that Japan is a great, progressive, modern nation, performing a valuable work in the world in modernizing the backward countries which come within its influence.

Progress is imperative. It is apparently the will of God that the world shall advance.

Countries which will not make progress must have progress made for them.

There is no use sympathizing with decadent nations which refuse to advance.

Let the progressive peoples of the world, and particularly the American people, reserve their sympathy and encouragement for the nations which are leading the march of progress.

AMERICA is a great, progressive country. It should understand the urge for advancement on the part of Japan, the impulse to impose a progressive influence upon the backward nations which obstruct the path of progress.

Japan has its sphere of influence and activity. America should keep out of it.

The League of Nations must indulge in futile meddling perhaps. It seems to be capable of nothing else.

But our country, fortunately, is not a part of the league, and does not have to meddle.

It has its independence. It has its own sphere of activity and influence.

Japan does not assume to tell the United States what it shall do in Cuba or Nicaragua or elsewhere in the sphere which circumstances prescribe for us.

Why should we assume to interfere with Japan?

That is my policy.

THE GREAT hope I have is that Japan and the United States, both forward looking nations, both powerful factors in the progress of the world, shall not conflict—especially that they shall not come to a conflict of arms.

Such a conflict would not only be disastrous to these nations; it would be destructive in its effect upon the progress of the world.

So I say to America, keep out of Japan's domain; and I say to Japan—when requested to speak—keep out of America's domain.

Maintain a wholesome respect for each other and each other's purposes, and keep the peace.

Adequate preparedness will help us to maintain a wholesome respect for each other, and help us to keep the peace.

Nothing is so provocative of war as the weakness which is an invitation to aggression.

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

DAVIS CALLED MOOSE 'CZAR'

had obtained the share by a devious route.

According to Treadwell, Davis' co-defendant, Fred W. Miller, turned over three checks to Fred Jones, the Senator's Pittsburgh secretary.

Jones put $15,000 of this money into Davis' personal account, deposited $17,850 to the credit of the Liberty Bond and Mortgage Company which was owned by Davis and paid $100,000 on a note at the bank against the organization department of the Moose, the government contended. This note, it was charged, was personally guaranteed by Davis.

"They (Davis and Miller) played important parts in these nationwide lotteries. They were part of the scheme. Tickets were shipped to every state in the union. They knew what they were doing when they started sending out tickets."

Davis took hold of the Moose in 1906 and built up the order from 247 members to 600,000 members, each of whose initiation fee was his, so Treadwell reported.

Needless to say, Counsellor Tuttle denied Treadwell's interpretation, and he painted a vivid picture of the Senator's career as Secretary of Labor under three presidents. Said Tuttle:

'We deny its a lottery. Mr. Davis knew nothing of it and did not participate in the distribution of awards and never got a cent out of it."

As a matter of fact Tuttle said Davis "never consciously got a cent out of it."

The folks in Davis' home town, Sharon, probably won't be pleased to learn that Tuttle located their town in Illinois.

BOYS IDENTIFY KIDNAPER OF OIL MAN

Urschel to Tell Jury Story of His Abduction

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Herbert K. Hyde, United States District Attorney, announced today that two farm youths, one related to three defendants in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case, had "positively identified" Albert Bates as one of the two men who boasted at noon July 22 that they were "going to kidnap a guy—soon." Bates is one of 12 on trial here for the kidnaping.

The youths, Gay Coleman and Carl Wilson, live near Stratford, Okla., where the prosecution has indicated it will seek to prove Bates and George Kelly, missing machine gunner, awaited the hour for their swoop upon the unsuspecting Urschel at his home here the night of July 22.

AGED MOTHER CALLED

Coleman is a cousin of the T. C. Coleman family. Mrs. Coleman, 74-year-old mother of Mrs. Ora Shannon, at whose Texas farm Urschel was held captive nine days, will be among the first federal witnesses.

Hyde said he took the two boys to the eighth floor of the federal towner this morning and they pointed to Bates, held prisoner in the "bullpen" there with Harvey Bailey, another principal defendant in the case, saying "That's him."

The boys, Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Urschel may precede the wealthy oil man on the witness stand, Hyde indicated. Their testimony is expected to be brief and if this procedure is followed Urschel may reach the stand during the day to recite his story.

SMALL TOWN JURY

A jury of small town businessmen and farmers was selected in an all-day session yesterday.

The charges, brought under the new "Lindbergh" law, carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment upon conviction.

The 12 were a strangely assorted lot and their attorneys planned equally varied defenses.

Attorney James H. Mathers, of Oklahoma City, planned to tell the court that Bailey is a victim of coincidence and, while arrested at the farm Urschel identified as the place he was held, actually had nothing to do with the kidnaping.

SEEKS TO PROVE ALIBI

Ben Sayers, stocky Fort Worth attorney, who with other Texas counsel is defending R. G. (Boss) Shannon, Texas farmer; his wife, Ora, plain and middle aged, and his 17-year-old son, Armon, was expected to tell that the family was coerced into harboring outlaws and holding Urschel prisoner.

J. B. Dudley, slim Oklahoma City veteran of the criminal bar, has been retained by seven men from Minneapolis and St. Paul, whose story is that while they were found in possession of ransom money paid by Urschel's family, they were ignorant of its nature and source. The seven are Sam Kozberg, Isadore Blumenfield, Peter Valder, alias Hackett and Nelson; Clifford Skelly, Sam Kronich, Edward Berman, alias Barney Berman, and Charles Wolk.

KIDNAPERS FAIL TO GET BANKER

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—An attempt to kidnap Milton G. Newman, wealthy banker and president of the Peoria Park Board, in his home last night was frustrated when his sister-in-law telephoned police and five young gunmen fled.

Newman told police he was called to the front door and was confronted by a young man with hat in hand. As Newman greeted him the man pulled a revolver the house, saying:

"Keep quiet, this is a kidnaping."

As Newman backed into the residence he said four other gunmen followed the first man into the house.

At that moment, Mrs. Newman, who had been on the second floor with her sister, Mrs. Rosa Kahn, descended to the first floor, and was commanded to halt.

Instead she turned and ran to the second floor calling to Mrs. Kahn to call police.

Idaho and New Mexico Voting on Repeal

Associated Press.

New Mexico and Idaho were having their say about prohibition today—the former lackadaisically, the latter with a wider display of interest.

Clear skies, beckoning the rural vote to the polls encouraged the drys in Idaho, home state of that long-time friend of prohibition, Senator Borah.

Allied drys predicted a vote of more than 100,000 with "well over 50,000" opposing repeal. William Healy, a repeal candidate, envisioned a 15,000 repeal majority out of a total vote of 75,000.

In New Mexico foes of prohibition predicted at least a 2-to-1 majority for repeal. The voters, however, displayed much more interest in another matter on the pallot—the question of limiting property tax levies.

These two states, the only ones to vote on repeal this week, are the thirtieth and thirty-first to ballot on the question. The other 29 all have approved wiping the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution.

Repealists hope for final success by November 7, when at least 39 states will have made their decision. Drys are striving to hold their lines. Approval of 36 states is necessary to amend the Constitution.

Hoover Bound for Fair Interviews Reporter

OMAHA, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Delayed five hours last night by a freight train wrecked near Gibbon, Neb., former President Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover were speeding across Iowa today, en route to Chicago and a visit to a Century of Progress.

The former Chief Executive was sitting in his shirt-sleeves, playing solitaire—and losing—when L. P. Osborne, a newspaper reporter boarded his train during his delay. Osborne sought an interview, but before long discovered he was the one being quizzed.

Hoover wanted to know all about the Nebraska farm situation. Are the farmers taking advantage of feed and federal farm loans? He listened quietly, frequently interrupting with new questions as Osborne told what he could of farm conditions.

Osborne asked:

"What do you think of the NRA?" "Why did you refuse to testify during the recent Detroit bank hearing? Is it true that while you were President, you were 'at heart' a wet?"

Smiling, Hoover answered all questions:

"I'm sorry, but I'm not discussing any national issues."

AFRAID OF HER TEMPER, HE TESTIFIES

Mt. Lebanon Woman Also Charged With Desertion

His wife criticised his bridge playing, spent more money than he earned and finally left him, Donald B. Williamson, of 1241 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, testified yesterday before Judge James H. Gray in his divorce suit against Jean Louise Williamson, 1059 Manhattan place, Los Angeles.

Williamson said his wife had so violent a temper that he was afraid of her, adding:

':'I did not know what she might do. She had been married before, and was more experienced than I."

The latest remarks was made when Judge Gray questioned the libellant as to whether there had been any blows struck, Williamson remarking he believed his wife wanted him to do so. He testified Mrs. Williamson wanted more clothes, pleasure and other luxuries and thought he should let the bills go so she could have them.

"Mrs. Williamson was always criticizing his bridge playing."

Then Judge Gray smilingly asked:

"Well, I have heard a lot of people criticizing bridge, but just what did she say—not your interpretation?"

The witness said so many things were said she just could not remember.

Williamson met his wife in San Francisco and had only known her six weeks when they were married. He testified that Mrs. Williamson returned to California because she wanted to go and has not indicated any desire to come back here.

Libels in divorce were filed by Helen Schermock against George Schermock, Bertha M. Kukol against John Kukol, Emaine Dostlik against Ralph J. Dostlik, and by Nettie B. Schmidt against Saul Schmidt.

COURT TO HEAR LAMSON PLAN

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 19.—Pronouncement of sentence upon David A. Lamson, convicted wife murderer, was postponed today when Superior Judge R. R. Syer continued until Friday the hearing on a motion by his attorneys for a new trial.

Lamson was to have appeared before Judge Syer and be sentenced for the murder of his pretty wife, Allene, a Lamar, Mo., girl who came West to Stanford, to popularity as an undergraduate to romance, to marriage, and to a misterious death in the bathroom of her campus home last Memorial Day.

The imposing of sentence is a mere formality because the jury of seven men and five women which brought in the verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree" made it mandatory for Judge Syer to order Lamson sent to the gallows.

Candidate cards of Judge Frank A. Piekarski and the picture of an attractive young woman was found in his pockets.

Railroad detectives who made the partial identification said Sullivan was released from the County Jail September 15, after serving a sentence for tresspass.

Sullivan was pronounced dead at the Homeopathic Hospital and the body removed to the morgue where an investigation is being made to determine the cause of death.

BANDIT ROBS SHOE STORE

A holdup was the reward of alert Charles Kamon, assistant manager of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, at 203 Fifth avenue.

He went to the store half an hour early this morning and while he stood in the doorway, a well dressed man approached. Said he.

"I'd like a pair of shoes."

Kamon explained the store wasn't open until 8 a. m., but the man insisted he was in a hurry. Kamon consented to serve him.

While the "customer" examined a pair of shoes Kamon, police said, opened the safe and when he turned around was confronted with a demand:

"Never mind the shoes. Give me the money."

LIBBY HOLMAN BUYS PLANE

Universal Service.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C. Sept. 19.—Through an order signed by William E. Church, clerk of Superior Court, Moses Shapiro, administrator of the personal estate of the late Z. Smith Reynolds, was authorized to sell the cabin plane of the dead aviation enthusiast to his widow, Libby Holman Reynolds, for $1,500.

Shapiro said the negotiations with attorneys for the former Broadway blues singer, who is reported to be contemplating a return to the stage in the near future, would be consummated within the next few days and a bill of sale issued to Mrs. Reynolds. The plane has been stored here since Reynolds was shot to death on July 6, 1932.

The purchase of the plane of her dead husband, who was heir to a tobacco estate valued in excess of $23,000,000, brought out the fact that Mrs. Reynolds would use the plane personally and learn to pilot it herself.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—David Hutton, billed in Brooklyn today as "Aimee's man," expects to hear from his evangelist wife within the next 24 hours, he revealed in an exclusive interview with International News Service today.

Before she turns her attention to saving souls on Broadway, which she plans to do four times a day at the Capitol Theater, beginning Friday, she will get in touch with the dramatic baritone whose "sinful" plunge into vaudeville helped estrange him from her, he is confident.

And when Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson pokes her blonde head in the doorway of his dressing room, why she will be perfectly welcome. Only, Davie will go right on with his divorce.

Said Dave, a mountain of green Turkish toweling, as he sat in his dressing room, fresh from a footlight rendition of "Take Me as I Am:"

"I hope she has a great evangelistic meeting. I will be doing my best to evangelize the Palace while she's in the Capitol, only I won't do it with religion.

"She says she still loves me, but she does everything in the world except show it. I'm through. I'm going to get that divorce."

CUBAN TROOPS SENT AGAINST REBELS

Old Machado Foe Wars On Grau San Martin Administration

HAVANA, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Confronted by incipient civil war, the new Cuban government today dispatched a trainload of troops and students to Camaguey Province, where Capt. Juan Blas Hernandez, known as the "Cuban Sandino," has taken to the field.

Capt. Blas conducted a long guerrilla warfare against deposed President Gerardo Machado. Recently he spent several weeks in Havana conferring with Gen. Carlos Mendieta, one of the principal leaders of the opposition to the present government.

FOUGHT MACHADO

The insurgent captain, who got his nickname because of the similarity of his anti-Machado campaign to that waged for years by Gen. Augustino Sandino in Nicaragua, left for the interior yesterday and immediately took up arms.

Secretary of Interior Guiteras confirmed the news that Capt. Blas had rebelled, but declared that he had no more than 100 men. Dispatches from Moron in Camaguey province said there were 300 well-armed soldiers following the captain's leadership.

STUDENTS' STAND

The student directorate, the principal supporters of the present administration, issued a manifesto saying that "the salvation of the nation depends on the stabilization of the provisional government conspiracy against it is to be considered treason to the fatherland and will so be dealt with."

Opposition leaders asserted that at least half of the army would support them in their drive to bring about the downfall of the Grau San Martin regime.

From Moron came news that Capt. Blas and his men were en route to Santa Clara in the direction of Havana. Secretary of Interior Guiteras predicted that they would soon be captured. The secretary said:

"Three squadrons are actively pursuing them, and I do not believe they can reach the hills from which they harassed Gen. Machado."

In the Machado regime there were heavy troop concentrations in those hills, but the government soldiers could not capture Capt. Blas.

Robbed, Slugged

SONIA LEPACK

BANDITS SLUG CABARET GIRL

Three bandits forced their way into an apartment at 210 South Winebiddle avenue early today, held up two young women and escaped with two diamond rings valued at $600 and $90 cash.

Sonia Lepack, 26, cabaret hostess, one of the victims, objected when one bandit attempted to take the rings and was slugged with the butt of a revolver. Audrey Becker, 23, who shares the apartment with Miss Lepack, was unharmed.

The women told police they were playing cards when they heard a rap at the back door. Miss Lepack answered and the three men forced their way into the room where Miss Becker was. They compelled both to lay face downward on the floor as they ransacked the purses of their victims. Miss Lepack said she lost $75 and Miss Becker, $15.

JEAN, HUSBAND TO HONEYMOON IN MEXICO

Platinum Blonde and Her Harold Hope It 'Lasts Forever'

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—A six weeks' honeymoon in Mexico City was in prospect today for Jean Harlow, 22, beautiful platinum blonde film star and Harold G. Rosson, 38, one of Hollywood's "ace" cameramen.

Married at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning in Yuma, Ariz., after a thrilling midnight airplane elopement from Hollywood, they returned here and were in seclusion today in Miss Harlow's Georgian mansion.

Miss Harlow said:

"He is my man!"

Said Rosson:

"For years I have admired her. For months I have loved her. And now she is mine."

And they both chorused:

"We are happy. We will be happy always."

Miss Harlow said she hoped to accompany Rosson next week to Mexico City, where he will supervise the camera work on "Viva Villa," a picture starring Wallace Beery.

'MOVE HEAVEN AND EARTH'

She said:

"I'm not in that picture, but I'll move heaven and earth to accompany Hal to Mexico City. Later, we'll honeymoon in Honolulu."

She explained:

"We eloped because we wanted a quiet marriage without a lot of fuss and to-do about it."

The romance that had its inception on a movie set where Rosson was cameraman for the dazzling blonde continued on the golf course, Miss Harlow revealed.

She declared:

"Hal's a great golfer, shoots in the low eighties. I'm glad to go around in 110. I guess our marriage will help my golf game all right. I went out a few days ago and the caddy said he couldn't add high enough to figure out my score. But now Hal can coach me, and I'll get back the old touch."

MAY IT LAST FOREVER!

Miss Harlow fervently expressed hope that "our marriage will last forever."

It was her third marriage, Rosson's second. A year ago last Labor Day the body of her second husband, Paul Bern, studio executive, was found in his Benedict Canyon home, a suicide. Several years prior to her marriage to Bern she was divorced from Charles F. McGrew, II, wealthy Chicagoan whom she wed when she was 16 years old.

"I consider Hal the ideal husband, lover, cameraman. I will try to be the ideal wife."

"She is, already," murmured Rosson.

Coal operators and NRA officials expect an increase in the retail price of bituminous after the code takes effect October 2.

The National Coal Association said today higher prices were inevitable because shorter hours and higher wages called for under the code would bring increased costs of production.

Officials of the association also pointed to the code's provisions prohibiting selling below the cost of production as a factor in the impending increase.

Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, during negotiation of the code, declared it would be reasonable to lift the retail price of coal back to the level of three or four years ago. He said:

"In fact I'd stand for its going up as much as $2 a ton, though I do not expect that it will."

President Roosevelt late yesterday issued an executive order making the compact for the coal industry effective within two weeks.

In doing so, he struck from the code a provision that had been written into it in the last hour of its negotiation—a section to which labor already had voiced objections.

There was no immediate comment upon the revisions by mine owners, most of whom left the capital after Saturday's agreement upon the code.

Spokesmen for organized labor, including John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, expressed their satisfaction with the charter and pledged co-operation in making it effective.

The President said in his executive order that the section sought to interpret the paragraph of the recovery law that specifies that labor shall have the right to join organizations of its own choosing.

VICTORY FOR LABOR

This had been the interpretation that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, had placed on that section of the coal code.

The President also made a change to permit the appointment by himself of three additional members of the bituminous industrial board, or to substitute them for government members of the divisional code authorities.

As the code stood, the industrial board was to be composed of 14 members, nine appointed by the industry and the five presidential appointees on the divisional authorities. This restricted Mr. Roosevelt's representation to those he had appointed to the minor groups. The amendment permits him to name other members or even to enlarge the board to 17.

He also reserved the right to fix those rates of pay not already specified in Schedule "A."

The President in his executive order asserted that the bituminous companies must continue to give reports to governmental agencies as well as to the NRA.

GREATEST VICTORY

Johnson described the conclusion of the coal code as "the greatest accomplishment of the National Recovery Administration." He said the code covered 95 per cent of the bituminous tonnage.

The document was taken to the White House by Johnson, Kenneth M. Simpson, a deputy administrator, and Donald Richberg, the NRA counsel.

Even as it went to the executive mansion Lewis and Green were seeking to have the labor advisory board of the NRA align itself with them against the labor provision.

They had expressed confidence that the section would come out.

An hour after the signing of the order, Lewis said:

"The United Mine Workers will accept the code and make every posible contribution to making it effective."

GREEN TO HELP

Green said the American Federation of Labor would co-operate with the mine workers on the code and added:

"We are especially pleased to note that Paragraph B of Section 5 has been eliminated. We construe this to mean that Schedule B has been eliminated entirely from the code.

"We are hopeful that the president of the United Mine Workers and other representatives of labor will be included in the three additional members of the Coal Industrial Board to be named by the President."

Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the NRA's Labor Advisory Board, which earlier in the day had expressed opposition to Paragraph B of Section 5, said the board "is glad the long struggle of the United Mine Workers for recognition has at last been successful through the orderly processes of the NRA."

Kansas Coal Miners Protest Basic Wage

PITTSBURG, Kan., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Mine union officials of District No. 14, United Mine Workers, today called on local unions to make formal protest against the coal code wage provisions for the Southwest. District Secretary Joseph Hromek declared the $3.75 basic wage is inadequate because of the rising prices of commodities.

J. J. Klaner, vice president of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association, said "the wage scale is the best to be had if there are to be any jobs for the miners."

ROOSEVELT'S COAL CODE NOTE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's executive order approving the code of fair competition for the bituminous coal industry:

An application having been duly made, pursuant to and in full compliance with the provisions of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, approved June 16, 1933, for my approval of a code of fair competition for the bituminous coal industry, and hearings having been held thereon and the administrator having rendered his report containing an analysis of the said code of fair competition together with his recommendations and findings with respect thereto, and the administrator having found that the said code of fair competition complies in all respects with the pertinent provisions of Title I of said act and that the requirements of clauses (1) and (2) of subsection (A) of Section 3 of the said act have been met:

Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, pursuant to the authority vested in me by Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, approved June 16, 1933, and otherwise, do adopt and approve the report, recommendations and findings of the administrator and do order that the said code of fair competition be and is hereby approved, subject to the following conditions:

(1) There shall be added to the first paragraph of Section 3 of Article VII of the code the following sentence:

"All coal producers subject to the code shall furnish to any government agency or agencies designated by the administrator, such statistical information as the administrator may, from time to time, deem necessary for the purposes recited in Section 3 (A) of the National Industrial Recovery Act and any reports and other information collected and compiled by a code authority, as heretofore provided, shall be transmitted to such government agencies, as the administrator may direct."

(2) There shall be added after the first sentence of Section 4 of Article VII the following sentence:

"The President may appoint not more than three members of the industrial board in addition to, or in substitution for one or more of, the aforesaid six members of the divisional code authorities."

(3) Schedule "A" as attached to the code recommended by the administrator is approved with the understanding that any basic minimum rates not fixed therein may be approved or prescribed by the President at any time prior to the effective date of this code by a supplementary executive order.

4—Because it is evident that attempts by those submitting codes to interpret Section 7 (A) of the National Industrial Recovery Act have led to confusion and misunderstanding, such interpretations should not be incorporated in codes of fair competition. Therefore, Paragraph (B) of Article V must be eliminated without, by this exclusion, indicating disapproval in any way of the joint statement of the administrator and general counsel of the National Recovery Administration, which has been attached to the code as Schedule "B" and was incorporated by reference in said Paragraph (B) of Article V.

5—The exception to the definition of "employe" in Article II belongs in Article III. Accordingly, the words "except members of the executive, supervisory, technical and confidential personnel" are stricken from the third paragraph of Article II. These same words are inserted in the first paragraph of Article III after the words "no employe."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

NRA SPEEDING RETAIL CODE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Retail price control today supplanted soft coal as NRA's big problem.

Hugh S. Johnson was in the midst of this job, pressing for completion of a master charter to embrace all retail trades, with their hundreds of thousands of stores and millions of employes, within a single fair competition code. Outstanding among its issues was a proposal to stabilize retail prices at 10 per cent above wholesale costs.

The price control provision was responsible for much of the great importance attached by Johnson to the retail trade code. What the administrator recommends to Mr. Roosevelt on this point and what the President approves was expected to provide an exposition of the administration's policy on price-fixing.

HOMES BOMBED IN SCRANTON

International News Service.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 19.—One man was injured, several persons were tossed from their beds and a half dozen others narrowly escaped injury early today when dynamite blasts ripped through two homes in different parts of the city as Scranton's mine union warfare continued unabated.

The homes bombed were those of workers at mines of the Penn Anthracite Mining Company, where a strike has been called by the Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, rival organization of the United Mine Workers of America.

The explosions followed each other in rapid succession. The first blast at the home of John Kallachan resulted in injuries to Kallachan and the hurling of his wife and five small children from their beds.

'First Lady' Sends Gift to Hostess

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. G. R. Work, who was hostess to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt during the recent visit of the President's wife to the mining settlements near here, has received an electric mixer for her kitchen from the nation's First Lady, who, in an accompanying letter, expressed her appreciation for the hospitality extended her in the Work home.

Greensburg Court Goes Under Code

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 19.—The Westmoreland County Courthouse has decided to conform to the NRA code regarding hours worked by employes.

The courthouse will open daily at 8 o'clock and will close at 4 p. m., with the exception of Saturday when the closing hour will be noon.

Price Fixing to Doom NRA, Economists Hold

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A blunt warning, based upon a scientific, economic analysis, that the entire NRA program will be defeated if a policy of price-fixing is adopted, was prepared today for Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, by experts of the research and planning division.

The aggressive attitude of the economists who were brought into the NRA movement to survey its progress and analyze future trends, promised to bring the entire price-fixing issue to a climax within the next 10 days.

ISSUE REVIVED

With price fixing permitted under the oil code, but not yet fully exercised; with price maintenance also provided in both the lumber and coal codes, the issue was raised with increasing force in the present negotiations for a retail sales code.

Although Johnson has consistently declared he opposed general price-fixing, if it can be avoided, he has approved the inclusion of provisions prohibiting sales below cost or fair market value.

Under the proposed retail code, which has divided retailers, economists and the NRA staff, it is proposed to prohibit sales of goods at less than wholesale cost plus 10 per cent. Some exceptions are provided.

The research and planning division, which was designed to give Johnson the benefit of experts in the economic field, declares in its report that price-fixing may destroy those who propose it as well as the NRA.

PERILS CITED

The report holds:

The chief volume of business in the country is done in the retail field, where prosperity begins and ends.

If prices are fixed, or if code provisions permit the frequent upward fixing of prices while not permitting downward adjustments to meet diminution of purchasing power, only decrease of sales volume or indefinite inflation can result.

First, if prices are fixed and purchasing power lags, there is no way for the merchant to save himself, since he would have to continue to hold surplus stocks.

Second, in such a case the government could resort to progressive currency inflation which would have the effect of temporarily raising purchasing power but would cause a continued increase in prices.

In either case, the economists hold, there is danger that purchasing power will lag. This, in turn, would create more unemployment at a time when the NRA is trying to put millions back to work and increasing their purchasing power.

LEWIS URGED TO SPEAK IN COKE REGION

company men might be enlisted from the three Colonial mines, which normally employ more than 2,000 miners. There are approximately 195 nonunion men at Colonial No. 3; about 50 at No. 1 and 84 at No. 4, according to union estimates. Company men claim 60 per cent are nonunion. By grouping the men at one mine, it is pointed out, the plan could be put into effect.

Miners and operators both are marking time. None of the operators has signified any intention to resume work.

The pickets remained at their posts. Every mine in the district was picketed.

Some of the men expressed themselves in favor of remaining out until the code becomes effective. Others declared they would stay out until Frick "signs up."

Rumors that attempts would be made to reopen the Frick mines tomorrow stirred the determination of the men to oppose it by mass picketing with reinforcements from other mines.

Company officials had nothing to say about the rumors. Their only comment was:

"We have received no work orders yet."

BOMBING PROBED

Following a bombing at Smock yesterday, it was reported to state police that a mystery cavalcade of automobiles had been seen in the vicinity shortly before the blast, which wrecked the beer garden, frequented for the most part by union miners.

The automobiles were reported at several places, either going in or coming out of Frick plants. State police and county authorities to whom the complaints were made were investigating. They were also seeking a motive for the bombing, which, according to Joe Cicconi, was aimed at him because of his friendship with union miners.

Pittsburgh District Mines Still Closed

All principal mines of the Pittsburgh district remained idle today, as the miners awaited word from their leaders as to what course would be followed with respect to the code signed last night by President Roosevelt.

No attempt was made to operate.

A meeting of the miners employed at Coverdale No. 8 of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation was scheduled for late today to discuss the code.

The general feeling among the men was that they would follow the advice of the officers of District No. 5, United Mine Workers.

Louis Smith, president of Local 260, United Mine Workers, near Imperial, said a mass meeting of miners of the district yesterday decided to remain out until full recognition was granted the union.

Smith and others induced miners of several small independent mines near Carnegie to join the walkout today.

Mystery in Death Of Park Victim

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Under circumstances that contradicted both murder and suicide, Harry Retsky, 28, a life insurance salesman, was found shot to death today in Douglas Park.

The body lay on newspapers and the victim's clothing was unrumpled. The position of a single bullet wound in the head, with powder burns about it, indicated he might have committed suicide.

U. S. EXPECTED TO PUSH NAVY BUILDING PLAN

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Great Britain's effort to interfere with the American naval building program by making certain suggestions regarding it is doomed to failure, it was predicted in authoritative sources today.

The British attempt to hold up part of the American naval building program was made during the conversations Norman H. Davis, America's roving disarmament envoy, had with British government officials in London over the week-end.

LIGHTER CRAFT FAVORED

Although the State Department refused to make any comment on the British suggestions, pending their consideration by President Roosevelt, it was believed in authoritative sources they related to the long-harbored desire of Britain to induce the United States to refrain from building 10,000-ton 6-inch-gun cruisers.

This type of cruiser long has been an issue in Anglo-American naval negotiations. The British prefer a maximum of 7,000 tons for cruisers, regarding these smaller ships as just as useful as the 10,000-ton vessels for the purpose of patrolling and protecting the far-flung possessions of the British empire. On the other hand, the United States, with its longer coast-lines to defend, considers the 10,000-ton ship more beneficial to its particular needs.

Simon to Leave King For Arms Conference

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—Indicative of the British government's concern over disarmament, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon today obtained King George's permission to leave Balmoral Castle and return to London for tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

Sir John has been staying at Balmoral as minister in attendance to the King.

Capt. Anthony Eden, of the foreign office, who discussed disarmament with French officials yesterday, will make a verbal report to Prime Minister MacDonald as soon as he arrives from Paris tonight.

It was believed that Capt. Eden, who is flying from Paris to save time, is bringing in addition to the French viewpoint a mass of notes exchanged between France and Italy, which will be closely scrutinized by the cabinet.

U. S. TO OPPOSE DEBT CUT

WILLIAM P. FLYTHE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—President Roosevelt will strongly oppose an international drive for war debt cancellation when the British send an envoy here October 5 to ask for drastic downward revision or that the debt be wiped out.

This was learned officially following announcement that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, representative of the British Treasury, would be here on that date to begin negotiations.

His visit is to be the forerunner of parleys with the representatives of other governments which have vast debt payments due December 15, many of which defaulted last June 15.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, both of whom will participate in the Anglo-American debt conversations next month, will sail from Southampton on the Majestic September 27. Sir Ronald has been here on leave.

DAVIS TO MEET DALADIER

By AENO BOSCH-SCHMIDT
International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The possibility of a "trade" between the United States and France in the matter of disarmament and foreign debts was revived today as Norman H. Davis, American arms expert, prepared to deliver a verbal message from President Roosevelt to Premier Edouard Daladier.

French circles were inclined to believe the message from the President would contain at least a hint that disarmament concessions on the part of France might soften feeling in the United States regarding the defaulted debt.

RADIO PRIEST RAPS FINDINGS OF BANK QUIZ

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, crusading priest whose charges of falsification of records and predictions of impending federal indictments against local bank officials startled the now closed Detroit bank investigating grand jury, said today in an interview in the Detroit News that the findings of the jury that no acts of criminality were evident did not change his views "one iota." He said:

"From the available testimony given, the United States government is a liar, Senator Couzens is a liar and Father Coughlin is a liar and the United States government, in addition, is an iniquitous thing because it closed perfectly solvent banks.

"If the United States government is so craven as to rest its case on this testimony, which was given by more or less prejudiced bankers, if the United States government will take complacently this opinion of the open grand jury which was formulated on testimony which eventually was aimed at saving the double liability of stockholders—then I am very much afraid the people of this nation and of Detroit will begin to classify our government as an Archangel Capone."

Father Coughlin, in testimony before the jury several weeks ago, lashed out at local bankers for what he termed "looting widows and orphans" through borrowings for affiliate companies on inadequate collateral. He accused various bank officials of falsifying reports, and declared that several bankers were "doubtful of escaping federal indictment."

The federal government now is investigating the closing of the two big national banks, the First National Bank-Detroit, and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

Discussing the finding of Judge Harry B. Keidan, who sat as the one man grand jury investigating the banks, that there had been no "smart money" withdrawals from the banks, Father Coughlin said:

"How about the dividends to stockholders of the Detroit Bankers Company (Holding company for the First National after the bank in 1932 was unable to meet the ordinary obligations of its depositors)? That was smart money which went out the back door. In my testimony I also added that if that were not true, then the books had been falsified. We proved by the records that they had undergone long periods of falsification."

Tinkham to Tour Manchukuo by Air

TOKIO, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—George H. Tinkham, Massachusetts Congressman, hopped off from the Tokio airport today for Mukden, Manchuria, planning an eight-day aerial tour of Manchukuo. He is believed to be the first American legislator to visit the new state since its foundation.

Drug Stores Won't Be Any Barroom, Says Head

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—"Spiritus frumenti will be sold and always have been sold by drug stores for medicinal purposes, but the American drug store isn't going to be turned into a barroom with the repeal of prohibition."

With this statement, John A. Goode, Asheville, N. C., as president of the National Association of Retail Druggists, today disposed of the liquor situation as it affects the pharmacist.

In his report to the association's annual convention, Goode exploded the popular myth that drug stores handle everything but drugs. As a matter of fact, he said, only 6 per cent of the total drug store trade is in sundries, such as sandwiches and rubber balls.

PRISON FOR JAP ASSASSINS

International News Service.

TOKIO, Sept. 19.—Eleven army cadets who participated in the assassination of Premier Inukai on May 15, 1932, were sentenced to four years' imprisonment by the judges in the court-martial proceedings today.

The sentences represented half the punishment demanded by the procurator. The court-martial was in session since July 25.

Testimony has revealed the existence of a plot to abolish constitutional government in Japan in favor of direct imperial rule, under which military elements would be supreme.

FOREIGN BOND AID URGED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—American holders of defaulted foreign bonds are bringing pressure on the administration to create immediately the corporation of foreign security holders authorized by the Federal Securities Act.

Holders of Colombian bonds and other groups recently have appealed to President Roosevelt to speed up organization of this corporation, which is designed to protect the interests of holders of millions in defaulted foreign securities.

Charles H. March, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, which administers the securities law, recently said plans for the corporation had received consideration, but no definite announcement has been made. A proclamation by President Roosevelt would be necessary to create the corporation.

Latest estimates of the Department of Commerce list defaulted foreign securities held in this country at nearly a billion and a half dollars. Latin-American securities make up about $924,000,000 of this sum. European obligations total roughly $560,000,000.

JOBLESS MAN ENDS FAST

International News Service.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—"I guess it's better to eat than to choke to death of hunger." Walter Sleda, 26, unemployed father of two children, was telling nurses in Receiving Hospital today, his five-day sacrificial fast over.

Sleda, sole support of a wife and two children, began his fast last Monday. He has been out of work three years. He said:

"After the long search for work proved useless, I made up my mind to starve to death so that my wife, Stella, and the kids could get the $2,000 insurance.

"But lying here hungry changed my mind about things, and I decided to keep on living and return to the job hunt."

ADVERTISEMENTS

Make the Pennies Bigger

WHEN James Buchanan was President and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts, the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy . . . linens that were linens . . . and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increase the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed, many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries, could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

Wheat Crackels!

Quaker WHEAT CRACKELS

THROW away your old ideas about regulation cereals. And enjoy breakfast as you never enjoyed it before! For a new, modern, up-to-the-minute cereal has just been created. Crisp. Brisk. Zestful. Different!

It's called Wheat Crackels. It's different because it's made by a just-discovered process never used in cereal making before.

How it's made

We take the rich energy parts of wheat. Compress these wheat hearts under 5000 pounds pressure to the square inch. Then the wheat is whirled in a seething cyclone of 500° of heat. It puffs. Expands. Explodes into delicious tissue-walled tidbits. Toasted and flavored to the Queen's taste.

The result is a cereal excitingly different from all others. It tastes as wheat has never tasted before. It looks exactly like delicious candy. It has a delicate, fresh crispness.

SECRET PROBE OF REICHSTAG FIRE NEAR END

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—An unofficial international commission investigating a fire in the German Reichstag Building last February was generally believed today to have reached a decision that at least two of the five men accused of starting the fire are innocent.

A secret session was conducted today by the commission, and the findings will be published tomorrow, the day before the five men go on trial in Leipzig, with decapitation recommended as a penalty upon conviction.

The final conclusions after several days of taking testimony were drawn up by a subcommittee composed of Arthur Garfield Hays, an American, and British, Swedish, and French attorneys, after a secret debate.

It was confidently expected that Ernest Torgler, former Communist whip in the Reichstag, and George I. Dimitroff, one of three Bulgarian political refugees, would be deemed innocent.

The others accused of setting the fire last February are Marinus Van Der Lubbe, an alleged Dutch Communist leader; and Blagoi Popoff and Wassil Taneff, Bulgarians.

JEWS BANNED AS ESCORTS

International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Beginning today, Christian girls in Germany must refrain from appearing publicly in the company of Jews.

This announcement was made in a scathing anti-Jewish speech before a monster mass meeting here by Walter Schulz-Wechsungen, of the Nazi Propaganda Ministry, who declared:

"I have issued orders that in the future when a German girl is seen on the street with a Jew, that girl is going to get a thorough spanking.

"The world outside should be grateful that Hitler rules Germany. If the masses had their way, there would be no Jew left to tell the tale.

3 NAZIS KILLED IN VIENNA CLASH

VIENNA, Sept. 19.—Austria's grave political crisis reached the violent stage today with a series of clashes between opposing factions.

Three Nazis were shot and killed and five seriously wounded in a pitched battle at Wolfseck, upper Austria, involving Nazis, Heimwehren (Fascists) and police.

Nazis Arrest 50 In Raid on Castle

ULM, Germany, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—About 50 men and women, including a former high state official, his family, several professors, judges and aristocrats, were arrested over the weekend by police and storm troopers in a lonely castle near Heidenheim-Wuerttemberg.

Police charged they were plotting sabotage against the Nizi state.

BELGIANS KEEP 'TEUTON FURY'

BRUSSELS, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—In opposition to the wishes of the government, the Dinant Town Council has decided to keep the Latin words meaning "by Teuton fury" on a monument to Dinant civilians killed in the World War.

The design is by the American, Whitney Warren, whose inscription "destroyed by German fury; restored by American generosity," on the Louvain Univesitry library balustrade caused much comment.

The balustrade of the Louvain University library has been smashed twice within the last five years, by Edmund Morren, who describes himself as a "Belgian patriot," because it supplanted one by Whitney Warren inscribed with the legend which, translated, read: "destroyed by German fury; restored by American generosity."

The last occasion was last June 30. Following upon a promise not to destroy the balustrate again, Morren's sentence was reduced from one year to two months, and he was set free. He already had served that length of time. The court suspended sentence for the first offense five years.

NAZI BOYCOTT IN N. Y. STORES

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—A score of the largest local department stores announced in a statement yesterday that the movement in the city to boycott German made goods had become so widespread that they were no longer buying stocks from Germany except in cases where the articles could not be obtained anyyhere else.

The stores have decided against formally joining the boycott themselves, however, on the ground that such an action would create "a dangerous precedent," although they represented themselves as out of sympathy with the anti-Jewish movement in Germany.

ORDER M'CLURE INTO COURT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—State Senator John J. McClure and 95 other Delaware County residents must plead tomorrow to an indictment charging them with conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition laws. Their trial is set for next week.

Their appearance was ordered yesterday by Judge George A. Welsh, of the United States District Court, who overruled the efforts of McClure and 69 others to upset the indictment on the grounds that the grand jury which accused them was improperly constituted.

Counsel for one of the defendants, however, launched a new attack, directing it at the petit jury lists from which 12 jurors will be chosen to try the Delaware County politicians and their alleged associates in what the government describes as a liquor protection ring. This attack charged the petit jury panel was improperly chosen.

U. S. MAIL FLIER DESCRIBES CRASH

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—From his hospital bed here, Harold L. Neff, airmail polit, today told his story of the crash which left him lying in a bog 11 miles from here for 60 hours while a widespread search was under way.

In spite of the fact that he has a broken arm and a broken leg and had suffered from exposure and hunger, the 25-year-old pilot was able to give a coherent account of his adventures and to describe his emotions.

LOSES WAY

Here is his story in his own words:

"I left Toledo about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. I went up about 400 or 500 feet to be sure I was clear of planes coming west. I started southeast and when I thought I was clear of those coming west, I turned to what I thought was east, toward Cleveland.

"Then I picked up the southwest range of the Cleveland station, but pretty soon the radio singals were not jibing and I knew something was wrong, but about the time I could reach Cleveland I saw a lake and beacon which I thought was Chippewa.

MISSED BY PLANES

"When I saw this beacon I started to come down, thinking I was on familiar ground. I was too low to drop a flare or jump. Suddenly I clipped a tree and came down. I climbed out of my ship and dragged out my parachute to lie on.

"My arm and leg pained pretty badly, but I wasn't alarmed because I thought I was near Chippewa, and someone would pick me up in a little while. After a few hours, though, I knew something was wrong and started yelling for help.

"A couple of times I saw a plane pass right over me, but it was so high they couldn't see me."

Walk Your Way to Good Health and Well-Being

The other day I was amused by the sight of several adults roller skating in a city park. Skating is a beneficial exercise, but everyone will agree that until one becomes expert there are many hazards connected with this form of recreaton. Yet, it is gratifying to learn that this healthful exercise is again popular, particularly in the outdoor form.

Dr. Copeland

I hope that interest in walking will now be revived. Many of you recall the days when walking was a popular sport in this country. Walking clubs and hiking parties were popular outdoor sports, indulged in by the young and old. Unfortunately, the interest in this health promoting exercise has greatly dwindled during the past few decades.

The value of walking as an exercise cannot be overstated. It is especially beneficial for those who require a certain amount of exercise and cannot indulge in strenuous performances, which to them are dangerous. Fortunately, walking is a form of exercise that is within the reach of everyone. It requires no equipment other than a good pair of shoes and the determination to walk.

Many constitutional ailments can be traced to lack of exercise. Poor complexion, lack of appetite, indigestion, inability to sleep, constipation, headache and irritability—these are a few signs of ill health that rapidly disappear when moderate exercise is taken. There is no better way to get it than in the form of walking.

Unfortunately, the increased popularity of automobiles has eliminated the need of walking. Going without it has influenced the health of the nation as a whole. I believe in the automobile, but let us not forget we have feet.

It is a mistake to neglect and overlook the value of walking. My advice is to walk whenever possible. In this way you will improve your health and protect against those ailments that result from lack of exercise.

When you walk keep the body erect, the head up and the abdomen in. The chest should be high and the shoulders thrown back. Relax, and swing your arms freely from the shoulders as you walk. The toes should be pointed straight forward as you walk on the balls of your feet.

Probably you have not been accustomed to walking. In that case it is advisable that you begin with gradual amounts of this valuable exercise. Increase the length of your walks slowly and do not indulge in them to the point of fatigue.

There are those who avoid walking because they complain of pain in their feet. This is often due to some foot disability that requires medical attention. Go to one who is expert in their care. You will bless me for this suggestion if you act upon it.

TURNER BREAKS OWN AIR MARK; WINS BENDIX CUP

Nerves Never Waver

LOS ANGELES—Colonel Roscoe Turner flashed across the finish line here 11 hours, 30 minutes out of New York, breaking his own coast-to-coast record for the westward flight and winning the annual running of the Bendix Trophy.

Forty-eight thousand spectators were on hand to greet the plucky pilot whose healthy nerves had carried him to victory. For a second time the coveted ... was his. One of the Colonel's first ... was for a Camel. Asked by a ... man if steady smoking ... nerves, Turner ...

"I WATCH MY NERVES as carefully as I do my plane," Colonel Turner says. "I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more because of their mildness and better taste. To me Camels are a much finer cigarette and I never have to give a thought to jangled nerves."

MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

COLONEL ROSCOE TURNER, in discussing healthy nerves and cigarettes, says:

"Breaking air records is an exciting business—and a nerve-wracking one! I know because I have gone out after a whole flock of records—and managed to pick off quite a few. Like most pilots I smoke a lot—in fact, I enjoy smoking any time. But I watch my nerves as carefully as I do my plane. I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more because of their mildness and better taste. To me Camels are a much finer cigarette, and being a faithful Camel smoker, I never have to give a thought to jangled nerves."

* * *

Are you nervous? Irritable? Try Camels and get a fresh slant on your smoking. Being a milder cigarette, Camels are better for steady smoking. You will find that Camels never get on your nerves...never tire your taste.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Sometimes a Father Is Bad Influence on Children

Marge wants to know.

The Big Boy has handed her plenty of grief—and very little else. But he insists that she is his wife, and threatens dire things if she tries to be anything else. While she wants to know if she's "being selfish" to walk out on him.

What would you do, if he were messing up your life?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have read your articles many times, and now here I am with my tale of woe. I need your advice.

I am a wife with two children, one a son by a former marriage, and a baby daughter. My first husband is dead, and after he died I went back to work, where I met the man I am married to now.

When I married the second time I moved to another city, and my son was boarded with friends, while I mothered my husband's little boy. (He was a widower.)

Now, before our daughter was born my husband accused me of running around with other men, which I never did, and claimed that the baby was not his. He has never supported me since the day we were married, and I sold a musical instrument of mine to buy clothes for the baby. I had to come back here to have her, and when she was three months old he had his sister bring me to him.

Then he got brutal. He hit me — more than once — and wouldn't allow me to go to work. He borrowed money from his friends, using me and the baby as his excuse. Finally I got back here to my folks, in a sick and rundown condition.

CONSIDERS DIVORCE

He followed me, and I made up, thinking he would be different—but he wasn't. He went to work, but he quarrelled at the least little thing, and again accused me of going out with other men. We—the baby and I—have been living with my sister and her husband for a half a year now.

I have almost made up my mind to get a divorce, but I do not want the baby to suffer by that. He threatens me and says "I am still his wife" if I mention a divorce. But so far he has done practically nothing for the baby. I am wondering if I am right in feeling the way I do.

I am willing to work for my children, but I don't feel I could ever go back to him again, no matter how much he pleaded with me. Do you think I am selfish?

He is living with his sister now. He manages to get clothes for himself, and a little money for his boy, but he doesn't pretend to even buy milk for the baby.

Please help me. MARGE.

NO GOOD TO CHILD

Are you selfish? Wrong to walk out on him?

No, you're not. Marriage is a partnership. If a husband won't tote even—won't treat his wife decently and with respect—then she is under no obligation to stand for his abuse or neglect.

And as for your little daughter "suffering" if you do rid yourself of him—let me ask you this, my dear:

Of what use is he to her? What good will such a father ever be to her? No good at all. In fact, his laziness and brutality and selfishness, his quarrelsomeness and his accusations against you would do her actual harm if she had to live with him.

So stand up for your rights and hers. If he threatens you the police can take care of him. And they'll make short work of telling him so.

Fay King Claims Endurance Mark for Solo Umbrella Flight

By FAY KING

Never had I thought of taking up aviation, but I did so during a big wind storm.

Like countless other "ground fliers," I was astonished to find myself suddenly zooming about and making parachute jumps.

In fact, I mean to claim some kind of an endurance or long distance record, for my old cotton umbrella plane outlasted all the fine silk umbrella planes that were in storm flight formation with me.

And, believe me, not until I had flown a few flooded gutters did I ever fully appreciate the hazards of ocean flying.

I also know how an aviator feels about a forced landing when he finds he is out of gas. I had to make several because I was out of breath.

Madge Becomes Worried Over Dicky's Reaction

I was glad indeed that Mrs. Ticer sat beside me in the front seat of my car when I returned from The Larches, and that I was driving, so that I had no time to think of anything but the wheel.

There is something about driving a car which for me is an escape from all mental problems, and as I sent the machine swiftly along the road, I soon forgot not only my agitation concerning Lee Chow but my uneasiness over the possible reaction of Dicky and my mother-in-law to Hugh's accompanying me on the drive to Patchogue.

My conscience acquitted me of any permanent attempt to deceive Dicky, who, after all, was the only person who had any right to question Hugh's presence with me.

As for Dicky, I meant to tell him of the incident at the first opportunity, and I felt that if he wished to be angry about an errand that I was undertaking solely for the purpose of saving his niece pain, I should borrow that young woman's vocabulary and say to myself that "it was just too bad."

The small, weather-beaten farm house which Mrs. Ticer, intermittently aided by her less active husband, has converted into a most attractive little home, came into sight around the bend of the road, and my neighbor straightened in her seat and gathered her belongings together.

"Won't you folks come in and have a cup of coffee and one of my doughnuts?" she asked hospitably, twisting herself around in order, I knew, that Major Grantland should feel himself definitely included in the invitation.

WOMAN LEFT OFF

"I should like nothing better," Hugh replied, "but I am in Mrs. Graham's hands. This is her expedition. I am simply going along as a sort of insurance in case of tire trouble or any other emergency."

"I wish we could stop," I said, regretfully, for the fame of Mrs. Ticer's coffee and doughnuts has extended far beyond her own family, "but I dare not delay Mother Graham's errand."

"That's so," Mrs. Ticer acquiesced. "I can't blame you. Here! Don't turn into my driveway. You'll only delay yourself that much longer, and it's only a step to the house."

"Thank you, I am in a hurry," I told her, and the next instant Hugh was at the car door, lifting her down with as much impressiveness as he would have shown the mistress of the White House.

"You don't know how glad I am that you're goin' with Mis' Graham," she said over her shoulder to Hugh, as she turned away after thanking us both. It sure eases my mind."

"It sure eases mine," Hugh commented when she was out of earshot, "to have you with me. This is a great improvement on the original plan for me to go alone. How about it? Do you wish to drive, or shall I?

MEET AVIS

"Please drive," I said, and I slid over to the other side of the seat, while Hugh climbed to the place I had vacated and took the wheel. "I can enjoy everything so much better when I'm not driving, so I'm going to be selfish."

"Selfish! You!" Hugh exploded flatteringly. "You don't know the meaning of the word."

"You don't know me," I returned lightly, then added a banal comment upon the beauty of the trees which eased our conversation into safer channels.

We did not talk much upon the way to Patchogue. I stopped at the Southampton shop and secured the promise of the extra small cake boxes Mother Graham wished; tarried for a minute or two, also, at the Hampton Bays hat shop, that I might have a plausible excuse to give her for the length of my absence; then Hugh hurried us along to Patchogue, where we arrived just in time to greet Avis Arlen, whose face registered disappointment when she saw me with Hugh.

"Oh!" she said, pulling herself together, "you came yourself, Mrs. Graham! How nice!"

"Yes, I thought I would save you that long drive to the farm and back tonight," I told her. "I was sure you could tell me all you wished in the interval before the next train back."

"Oh! Do you mean that I'm not going to the farm; not going to see No-el—and Mary?" she added, as if by an afterthought.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

There are any number of exercises that will mold large ankles to a state of trimness; one of the best is folding the arms across the chest, squatting almost to the floor, rising on the toes. When muscle control is achieved, the beauty quester can go a step farther; when she is squatting she can send out one foot, then the other, with a little hop between.

Eye shadows gain in favor, and will be used even more generally when the silly summer season is finished. Cheek rouge has almost disappeared. But the lipstick is the little old sticker; it stays. It's just as vivid and flambuoyant as it ever was, for all the talk about dimming. Tan powders are taboo; they had a brief fling.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Defense Tactics

As the bidding ordinarily requires the co-operation of two partners so that the best contract may be reached, so the play of the hand requires the co-operation of the defending players to the end that they who must grope in the dark to a considerable extent may realize to the full the defensive possibilities of their holdings. Defense unquestionably is the most difficult part of play. The Declarer can combine his holdings to the best advantage without any guesses as to his strength or weakness. The opponents are in a much different situation. However, after the Opening lead is made, they have not only the guidance of their own bidding, if they have participated in the auction, but the exact knowledge of the Dummy holding and a fair estimate based on the bidding of the cards held by the Declarer. Frequently it requires, as in the instance below, a combination of all these elements to point the way to the correct defense.

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ K Q J 4 3 ♡ K 10 8 7 4 ◇ A 10 ♣ 9
♠ 9 8 7 ♡ 2 ◇ 4 2 ♣ A 8 6 5 4 3 2	North West East South	♠ 6 5 2 ♡ A J 9 ◇ K J 9 7 ♣ K Q J
	♠ A 10 ♡ Q 6 5 3 ◇ Q 8 6 5 3 ♣ 10 7

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇ (1)	Pass	2 ♣ (2)	2 ♠ (3)
3 ♣ (4)	Pass	Pass	3 ♡ (5)
Pass	4 ♡ (6)	Pass	Pass
Double (7)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—As East and West are vulnerable, East prefers the diamond bid, especially in view of the fact that he has no probable trick in spades.

2—With a seven-card suit headed by the Ace, West's Take-out of his partner's bid is, of course, obvious.

3—If North held the same honor strength, but had five spades, four hearts, three diamonds and one club, or five spades, four hearts, three clubs and one diamond, he would double rather than overcall, but with a two-suited hand, the bidding may easily become crowded, and he is anxious to show both suits if possible below the level of game so that his partner may make the best choice of a contract.

4—East's hand suggests one Rebid. He hopes his partner may have a spade stopper and in view of his club support be able to bid three notrump.

5—While his partner is not encouraging, North feels that he must show his other biddable suit.

6—Thus far South's passes might have shown an entirely blank hand. However, he does hold four trumps to the Queen, the Ace of spades and the Queen of diamonds. The value of the Queen of diamonds is probably negligible, but the four trumps and the Ace of partner's first bid suit are of unquestioned value.

7—With two almost certain trump tricks and two other probable tricks, East's hand suggests that South's contract can be defeated. The Double, though close, is perfectly sound.

The Opening lead was the club King, and West knew that the Declarer could hold but one club. Possibly his partner did not need to establish the diamond trick to defeat the contract, but certainly a diamond lead through the closed hand could do no harm as five trumps were exposed in the Dummy and this suggested the possibility that East, when he regained the lead, might be very diffident about leading the suit. Also if the Opening bid was based on the holding of four diamonds to the King-Knave, West must co-operate in the establishment of the King as a trick winner in order to defeat the contract. Therefore West overtook the club King with the Ace and led a diamond. Had he not done so, East would have been forced to continue the club suit and the Declarer would have ruffed. He would have then led a low trump to the Queen in Dummy and naturally East must play the nine. The Declarer could now have taken three rounds of spades, and while East would still have cashed 2 trump tricks, the contract must have been fulfilled.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Will you please bid the following hands?

North, Dealer.

	♠ K 2 ♡ K J 9 6 5 3 2 ◇ A 4 ♣ 10 6
	North West East South
♠ A 10 3 ♡ A 7 4 ◇ K 7 ♣ A K J 9 6

Answer:

North	South
1 ♡	3 ♣
3 ♡	5 NT
7 ♡ (1)	Pass

1—North can infer that the Grand Slam will, at worst, depend upon a heart drop, as the bid of five notrump shows all three missing Aces and the club King. Furthermore, South's bidding clearly shows that more than one heart is held.

Household Hints

The flavor of carrots will be improved if a pinch of sugar is added to them while cooking.

Steel wool is a good cleaner for suede shoes. Rub lightly over any spots and they will soon disappear.

Instead of using a broom or duster for cleaning wall paper try a dry rubber sponge, using a light, firm downward stroke. This will be found a much more satisfactory method.

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a farewell party before entering the convent. Will you kindly send me a correct and friendly form of invitation? M.

This would, I think, be an appropriate form:

Dear Cynthia:

Before I enter the convent, on October twentieth, I want very much to have a very informal gathering of my close friends at my home. Will you come on Friday, the tenth of October, at about four o'clock, so that we can all have a nice long chat together and a cup of tea? Do say "yes."

Dearest love to you.

Affectionately,

'BUTTONS' PAYS VISIT TO SUBURBS

During the next day or two "Buttons" is making the delivery of cash awards from the Sun-Telegraph in suburban territory. Today he is in McKeesport, Homestead and Duquesne and you'll know him by his natty uniform.

"Buttons"

You see, it's this way. "Buttons" had been "paging" only Pittsburghers for a week or two, and the telephone calls from the outlying cities and boroughs in the Pittsburgh area asking "Why 'Buttons' doesn't get out our way?" came in so fast that it was decided to give these folks an opportunity to meet and "cash in" on the Sun-Telegraph page boy.

Well, "Buttons," is the popular man of Pittsburgh and vicinity these days. Wherever he calls he leaves a cash reward. "Buttons" is promoting the "Spend a Dollar . . . Make a Job . . . Buy in September and Save," movement by making it possible for 11 readers of the Sun-Telegraph to spend at least this amount every day. In fact "Buttons" gives away one $5 award every day and 10 other awards at $1 each.

All the names he pages are printed in the Want Ad columns of the Sun-Telegraph before he makes his calls at the homes and delivers the cash.

Your name may be in the list today. It may appear tomorrow. You can't tell when it will appear. So it is advisable to watch for the new list of names on the Want Ad pages every day.

CLEANING SHOPS ATTACKED

Windows in the retail stores of Oswald Werner & Sons Co., at 122 South Highland avenue, and Footers Dye Works, Schenley Apartments, were broken in a renewal of violence in the 10-day-old strike of cleaners and dyers.

The Werner plant was one of three which attempted to resume operations yesterday under police guard.

Negotiations for the settlement of the strike have been held up pending the return to Pittsburgh of Miss M. Emmelinne Pitt, local commissioner for the United States Department of Labor. Miss Pitt is in New York getting information relative to the settlement of a similar strike of cleaners and dyers there.

15,000 Painters Strike in New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Union painters, decorators and paper hangers of New York walked out today in a strike for a six-hour day, five days a week and $1.85 an hour.

Officials of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America estimated 15,000 joined the strike, halting jobs throughout Manhattan, the Bronx and Staten Island.

USED CAR FIRMS PROTEST CODE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The used car industry complained to the Recovery Administration yesterday that the code for retail dealers was unfair because it empowered the National Automobile Dealers' Association to fix prices and stipulate what trade-in allowances would be.

Charges that used car dealers would be thrown out of business because they would be governed by competitors echoed through the public hearing on the proposed code for retail motor dealers.

Abram Goodman, representing the National Used Car Dealers' Board of Trade of New York, said the code was written for "dealers in new cars" without differentiating between those who accepted trade-ins only as an incidental feature of their business.

GLASS BOTTLE STRIKE ENDS

Three hundred employes of the J. T. and A. Hamilton Company, glass bottle manufacturers, Twenty-sixth street, returned to work this morning, after being on strike since last Thursday.

The strike was ended last night when an agreement was reached between officials of the company and leaders of the Glass Bottle Blowers Association. The agreement calls for a revision of wages, an eight-hour day, and 40 hours a week. The plant will operate 24 hours daily, employing three shifts.

Recognition of the union was granted, which means all employes will become members of the Glass Bottle Blowers Association.

Circus on Ship Worse Than Gale, Captain Finds

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—Capt. Harry Hichborn, of the liner Caracas, brought his vessel into port today more battered and exhausted than if he had been through a hurricane.

The ship's passenger list on the way to Porto Rico and Caribbean ports had included Monge Brothers' circus. The captain said:

"I never want to see another circus as long as I live. I've never seen such goings on aboard ship.

"There was one elephant, Topsy, a three and a half-ton brute 58 years old—old enough to know better—who gave us plenty of trouble."

CHAPLIN MAKES READY FOR FILM

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Charles Chaplin has reopened his studios and will start production on a silent picture within the next 60 days, the comedian announced today.

Paulette Goddard, to whom Chaplin often has been reported engaged, is to play the feminine lead in the picture, as yet unnamed.

Chaplin, generally considered as Hollywood's leading exponent of pantomime, said he believed the silent picture still has its place in art and entertainment and will use only incidental sound effects in his new picture.

And Fred GOT It!

"Hello, Joe!" Where'dja get the new suit?"

"Harris'. What made you ask?"

"Why, I think it's a peach, Joe. Looks great on you. Say, by the way, do you think they'd give me a break? You know I haven't been working long, and it seems no matter how I try I can't save up enough all in one lump to plump it all down at one time. Whattya think?"

"Well if I were you, Fred, I'd go right down there to-morrow. They've got a swell Men's Clothing Department—no kiddin'—and they treat you like a million dollars."

"How much would I have to pay down? Have you any idea?"

"Well, what they told me was, 'If you're working, your credit's OK, with us.' So I ordered me two suits while I was at it."

"You know something, Joe—my father used to buy his clothes down there—and used to pay cash too. All of us kids got our clothes there. But since I haven't been working—"

"Forget it, Fred. Do as I tell you. Go down there and lay your cards on the table. And I'll gamble a five dollar bill you'll get what you want."

NOTE: This conversation parallels, as closely as we can remember it, an actual case told of by one of our customers this past week. Fred left here completely re-outfitted, and for the use of our Extended Charge account, which gave him many months to pay, he didn't have to pay a solitary cent over our regular CASH price! We OK your credit immediately, if employed.

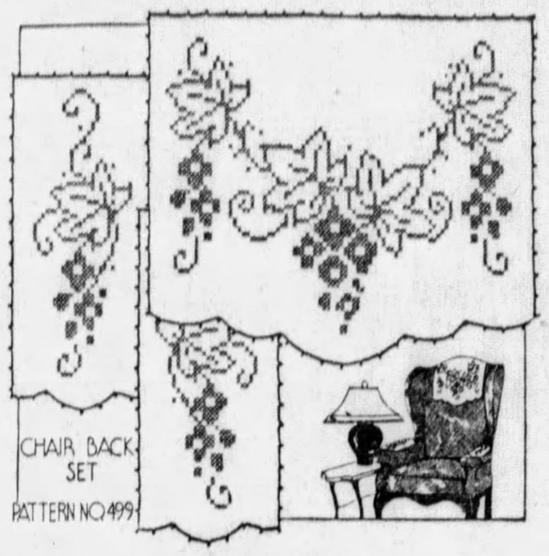
A CROSS-STITCH SET



By LAURA WHEELER

Summer is over—fall is commencing. It is at this time that the wise housewife begins to make her home attractive for the winter. She knows that it is the accessories—the smart touch here—the bit of decoration there—that make her rooms lovely. Chair back sets do a double duty, they add to the beauty of a chair, and protect it from wear. First used in Victorian days, they have regained their old popularity, and are seen today in the loveliest homes. This set, since it is done in large crosses, makes it possible to have a handsome piece of embroidery in short time. Pattern 499 consists of a chair back design 12½x15 inches and two arm rests 5½x12 inches. The pattern comes to you with detailed directions for making the set and necessary yardage.

Send 15c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

PICK 11 JURORS IN 'DEVIL' DEATH

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Tex., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Only one juror remained to be selected today before the taking of testimony in the trial of Coy Oakley, religious zealot accused of murder in connection with the strange death of Bernice Clayton, 3-year-old cripple.

The 11 jurors chosen before court recessed last night were questioned by state attorneys concerning their attitude toward the death penalty. The defense indicated an insanity plea might be made.

The child died last December at her father's cabin in an isolated East Texas community near Linden while weird rites were being performed over her by the Oakleys, purportedly to "drive out the devil."

Paul Oakley was convicted of murder and sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment last May. Witnesses testified at that trial the child died while Paul Oakley's hands were on her throat.

TROLLEY PROFIT CURB SEEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The day of unrestricted profits is over, traction officials were told today, by A. J. Lundberg, Oakland, Cal., street car executive.

Speaking before the American Transit Association convention, he said:

"Business is becoming a service, to be paid for by the consumer at a cost to meet the necessary, fair expense. The cost of capital will be scrutinized and perhaps fixed by an authority higher than the owner."

With the "noiseless street car," padded with rubber to prevent the squeaks, ready for adoption, the traction lines find themselves unable to finance the change, Lundberg said. Walter A. Draper, president of the association, told members in his annual address that government funds might be available for this.

ELECTION RETURNS -:- WCAE Gives Decisions -:- BROADCAST TONIGHT

Local Drama, Bing Crosby On Radio

The premier performance of the new KDKA Drama League is presented tonight at 7:30. The cast is composed of players chosen from more than 500 auditioned during the past few weeks. Jean Dahl and Robert Pritchard are among those appearing in "Marcia's Brother," first of the series of dramatizations. Other local thespians will take part in subsequent plays in the series. John Gihon, station program director, wrote tonight's script. Claude Morris is the only veteran player in the cast.

Miss Dahl

Bing Sings

Bing Crosby, who soon will resume his place as a regular radio feature, sings tunes from his latest motion picture on the California Melodies program, heard over WJAS tonight at 10.

In the same broadcast, Clive Brook, a favorite of the screen fans, is interviewed by Eleanor Barnes, film writer. Raymond Paige and his orchestra continue their musical duel with Mark Warnow and his musicians, the one group playing from the West Coast, the other from New York.

* * *

A gala broadcast from Buenos Aires is relayed over the NBC-KDKA network tonight at 9:30.

An orchestra of 150 pieces, a 60-piece symphony ensemble and many of the outstanding radio stars of the Argentine are supposed to take part in the South American broadcast. Another interesting feature listed on the program is a 60-piece chorus of guitars.

The Navy

"I love the United States Navy better than any other branch of the Government," Franklin D. Roosevelt told the recently graduated class of Midshipmen at Annapolis. Tonight, his cousin, Henry L. Roosevelt, acting Secretary of the Navy, tells the nation, over an NBC-WCAE network, the need for an Adequate Navy, not only as the first line of national defense, but as a protection to American life and property abroad. His address is heard at 10:30.

Air Dramas

General Nelson A. Miles, who brought about a peace pact with the fierce-fighting Geronimo, chief of the Tonto Apaches, is the hero of tonight's "Lives at Stake" drama, presented over WCAE at 10. Plenty of war whoops, arrows and bullets in this one.

* * *

The romance, drama and tragedy that went hand in hand through the life of the immortal Mozart, is re-enacted with some of the music from his magic pen in a radio drama heard over NBC-KDKA at 9.

* * *

"Lead Tornado," story of a daring jailbreak plot, is enacted during the Crime Clues broadcast, heard over KDKA at 8.

* * *

Prize Song

Nino Martini, Columbia artist, who will appear as the leading lyric tenor during the forthcoming Metropolitan Opera season, sings a Wagnerian composition for the first time tonight at 9:30, over WJAS. The Columbia Symphony Orchestra accompanies him in the famous "Prize Song."

* * *

Three all-American football stars, Jap Douds, W. & J.; Bucky Moore, "The Dixie Flash" from Loyola, and Tony Holm University of Alabama, all members of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional gridders, are interviewed during Tony Wakeman's sports broadcast, over KDKA at 11.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentelmen:

Mrs. F. J. Ross makes paragraph one of the column today with her apple tree story. It's worthy of a Ripley cartoon. At her home in North Bessemer there is an apple tree which is blossoming and bearing fruit for the second time this year.

* * *

Somebody got another laugh at the expense of the Trotter. Some Allegheny rooter gleefully inquired, "What is the North Side of a woman?" It seems I was taking about a lady being hurt on the North Side.

* * *

Penn State Globe Trotters point out that the new boxing coach at Duquesne, Johnny Napoleon, was the best dressed athlete and one of the smartest sartorial figures on the Penn State campus. He was known at college as "Pittsburgh's fighting banker," his dad being a former bank executive here.

Noblestown Reader — If an election board is honest there is no way for any member of it to tell for which candidate a ballot is cast.

* * *

Mrs. Matthews — It doesn't make any difference whether a person is working for board and room in addition to a small wage, if the employment in a store is 70 hours a week it violates the NRA code.

Seminary Students Registering Today

Registration for new students will be held today at Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, while upper classmen register tomorrow. An address in Pressly Chapel by Dr. W. J. McMichael, of Greensburg, tomorrow afternoon will open the new term. Class work will start Thursday.

You and your Camay Complexion—

Get Flattery, Favor and Praise!

Another Beauty Contest—Won!

All men were created equal, but certainly all women were not. Some get the praise and good times in this great Beauty Contest of life—some get the troubles and the grief.

You can't help your features, but you can greatly improve your skin.

Clap hands, then, for the girl who's been smart enough to get for herself a Camay Complexion—a skin that calls forth deserved flattery and praise. For every girl who lives is in this Beauty Contest. And a lovely skin is sweet to the eyes of all who pass judgment on her charms.

CAMAY GIVES YOUR SKIN A "SATINY SOMETHING"

Camay is made for the feminine skin—as soft and gentle as your finest cream! A 1933 soap—pure creamy-white as a beauty soap should be.

Perfumed as if it came from Paris, smart as the newest dress from Vogue, luxuriant in its lather, Camay is just made to give you a clean and girlish skin.

"Never a day passes but what someone compliments me on the soft texture of my skin," said a wealthy society girl. "But I must confess, that's only since I've been using Camay."

A young librarian made this remark: "I may be fussy, but Camay pleases me so perfectly that I simply refuse to use any other soap on my skin."

TRY CAMAY NOW AND CONVINCE YOURSELF

The new Camay has changed the soap preferences of women all over the land! It is rapidly becoming the new favorite among fine soaps.

Ask your friends—the best informed women you know. For Camay is a 1933 soap—the smartest looking, best feeling soap of the year. And in spite of its low price, it is amazing to note that wealthy women—to whom price is no object—have been the first to adopt the Soap of Beautiful Women.

Write the beauty editor of any great magazine. Ask her about Camay. The choice of your soap is a serious matter and you ought to have the facts.

To Broadcast Byrd Flight Over Pole

By AIRCASTER

If you'll permit the Columbia boys to say it with a pun, they've just pulled a Byrd of a scoop on the rest of the radio world, in the matter of devising the remotest of all remote-control stunts.

The Columbia system, as the officials proudly announce, has arranged to waft, early in November, specially prepared, and specially written programs over a coast-to-coast network, from no less remote a spot than Little America in the Antarctic, and if they're lucky, from right over the top of the South Pole.

In other words, Columbia has tied up with the Byrd Antarctic expedition, which starts out from New York early next month, and which will spend two years in the icy wastes, from which place Admiral Byrd will again fly, hither and yon, over the pole, and relay to the rest of the world, the story of his adventures, his findings, all done up in dramatic form.

Admiral Byrd

Titusvillains

Now, if anyone ever reads this so painstakingly prepared palaver, someone will rise up on his hind legs in defense of Titusville, up near Tidioute. Hear ye, Titusvillains!

WOR, over at Newark, has put on a series of "Main Street" dramas "About the good folk of legendary Titusville." Don Carney, whose Dog Chats are a regular NBC-KDKA feature, plays the role of a lovable Luke Higgins. There's a sad-voiced Ivalutty, a slightly deaf Horace Peters. Little Wilbur and the usual musical ensemble. Happily for the sketches, they're sponsored. Unhappily for Titusville, it's a "mythical" town in the drama series. The program, by the way begins Sunday night at 8:30.

* * *

Glen Gray will cop the new air acount being planned by the sponsors of Amos 'n' Andy . . . Clarence Chamberlain, famous flier, will be on the NBC air at 5:30 today, to tell about the plans for the national air pageant.

Seibel Discusses Plays and Players

The Globe Trotter, voice of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the news over WCAE-WJAS at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15 p. m.; over WCAE at 2:15 p. m., and WCAE-WJAS at 6:30 p. m.

Junior Patrol To Have Orchestra

A lot of boys and girls have a lot of fun tomorrow afternoon, when the Junior Patrollers broadcast over WCAE at 4:45. And that reminds us that there's room for more performers on the program.

Jane White, who takes charge of the broadcasts, is looking for musicians, to form a Junior Patrol Orchestra. She will hold auditions in the WCAE studios Wednesday afternoon, October 4, at 5:15, and wants all young boys and girls who can play the piano, violin, saxophone—any kind of instrument that is used in an orchestra—to come up to the studios for an audition. Remember the day, Wednesday, October 4, at 5:15 p. m.

Junior, Snuggins, and Spike.
Betty Lou Swank—piano solo.
Rita Ortenzo—vocal solo: Jack and Jill.
Howard Beech—coronet solo.
Lester Gilbert—original poem: The Lion.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

The latter part of this week will bring many entertainments for that popular bride-to-be of Monday, Mary Franklin Robinson, who'll wed William D. George, Jr., of Sewickley, Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Franklin Farms, the Sewickley Heights home of her parents, the William Christopher Robinsons.

Rebecca Doyle, of Sewickley, who'll be one of the bridesmaids, will give a luncheon in her home for the bridal party in honor of Mary, Saturday.

On Sunday Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, of Sewickley Heights, parents of Mrs. Myron H. Wilson, Jr. (Peggy Milligan), who will be matron of honor, will give a luncheon in their home for the bridal party. Saturday night the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, uncle and aunt of the bride, will entertain at the rehearsal dinner in the Allegheny Country Club. Dr. Alexander will officiate at his niece's wedding.

* * *

To Fete Bride

Another bride-to-be who'll be entertained before her wedding is young Gretchen Bickford, daughter of the W. I. Bickfords, whose marriage to David McCargo, son of the Grant McCargos, will take place October 3 in the Bickford home.

Mrs. Grant McCargo will give a dinner-dance, but the date hasn't been definitely set yet. Mrs. J. Hanson Rose and her daughter, Gretchen Rose, will give a buffet supper in their home for the bride-to-be and her fiance tomorrow evening.

* * *

School Set Farewell

Some of the debutantes, many of the post-debutantes and young fathers and mothers thronged to the attractive dance at the Edgeworth Club last night, given as a farewell to the boys and girls who'll be off to private schools this month. First there was a buffet supper and then dancing.

Ruth Brooks, or Pussy Brooks as everyone calls her, who'll go to Farmington, was one of the attractive young guests of honor. She wore a green chiffon printed frock. Jinny Rose, another Farmington girl, was in a navy blue crepe dress suggestive of the fitted lines of the Mae West vogue.

Young Betty Evans, who'll study this winter at Miss Nixon's School in Florence, Italy, I saw eating supper with Ruth Brooks, Don Rose and Laurie Applegate.

Popular Debutante

Alice Brown, who will undoubtedly be one of the most popular debutantes of the season, I saw dancing with Andrew K. Black III.

Alice wore a deep blue crepe frock matching the color of her eyes and contrasting with her black hair and sun-tan. Her gown was cut low in the back and draped in cowl fashion, high in front, and had long full sleeves, puffed to below the elbow and finished with a long tight cuff of blue net and crisscrossed bands of blue crepe.

Another deb was charming Florence Willock, who wore a chrysanthemum yellow chiffon gown having a sash of brown velvet. I saw Althea Robinson, who came out in June, having a tete a tete with J. Merrill Wright, Jr. Althea was in a snapdragon yellow embroidered net dress having brief puffed sleeves.

Post-Debs Attend

Another post-deb, petite Nancy Doyle, wore dusty yellow crepe having a border of mink on the cape collar.

* * *

Others I recall seeing among the dancers were Mrs. Ira L. Brainard, Mrs. V. L. Schriver, Mrs. David Chaplin, and Jean Jean Thornton, in a Roosevelt blue organdie dress with a dull red buckle fastening the belt; Clara Haines, Marnie Brown and Helen Stuart Link, all of the school set. Helen will go to Miss Madeira's this fall.

Mrs. Charles Arrott arrived with Mrs. Frank Williams and Mrs. Frederick Stevenson. Mrs. Arrot's white crepe dress had a row of white crepe buttons down the back. Mrs. McElroy Moss was there, and Mrs. W. M. Yost.

Blond Shirley Adams and blond Mary Applegate were attractive members of the school set and so were Mira Bowman and Mary Cook. Shirley's dress of white crepe had deep ruffles of the crepe placed to suggest a bustle and to finish the hem-line.

A DEB AND HER SHY DANCING ESCORT

MISS ALICE BROWN, ANDREW K. BLACK III AND FRIENDS (THE FRIENDS ARE BEHIND HIM)

Miss Brown, a debutante, helping some of his friends with good-naturad "Andy" Black, who just couldn't make up his mind to face the camera at the younger set's dance at the Edgeworth Club in Sewickley last night. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BLACK FALL SUITS ARE SMART FOR TOWN WEAR THIS SEASON

NEVER LET it be said you haven't a fall suit in your wardrobe. One should be hanging there now, ready to pop out at the first cold-weather signal. We see in New York, many different types that are selling well. If you would be clever, then pick, without question, the suit that best fits your type. There are at least three species for you to select from this year.

* * *

IT MIGHT be a woolen—striped, checked or plain, and definitely sporty—with some long-haired fur snuggling close to the neck. Or, it may be a furless suit, with a foolish little dash of color in the shape of a scarf or kerchief knotted at the throat instead. You might look best in a suit with a new kind of long graceful coat, extravagantly full, and reflecting fashion's sudden interest in all things Arabian. (Incidentally, in the evening, this Arab's burnoose, slipped on over the head in the authentic manner worn by the Spahis on the African desert, is the smartest of all wraps. Shut your eyes tightly and see if your mind can possibly conjure up anything more regal than this long graceful evening cape in ermine!)

* * *

IF FATE forces you to be practical, then get a good black town suit or coat trimmed in black Persian lamb. It will carry you safely through the fall, and into the winter for that matter, if winters are not too harsh where you live!

* * *

THE COAT as well as the skirt can serve double duty for it can also be worn over a woolen dress contrasting in color, for bright dresses under dark woolen coats are very smart this year. The skirt also doubles up for costume purposes. With a metal cloth blouse, you're formally dressed for the afternoon in the same suit that sees another woman to work in a tailored satin blouse. Beware of tricky sleeves, tricky collars, tricky silhouttes.

Federation Delegates Will Find New Ideas At Convention Here

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Delegates to the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention, October 9 to 13 in the William Penn Hotel, will find many new ideas put into effect.

Strange as it may sound, even the convention prayers will be somewhat different. For instance, at the Girl Scout ceremony on Wednesday morning, the opening prayer will be a part of the ceremony and at the convention banquet Mrs. F. F. Rohrer's new setting for Mary Stewart's beautiful "Collect for Clubwomen" will be sung as the invocation.

The Rev. Dr. Louis H. Evans, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, will offer the invocation at the formal opening, Tuesday morning, the tenth, and the Rev. Dr. Owen Davies Odell, of Sewickley, will offer it on Thursday morning.

Incidentally, the Wilkinsburg High School Orchestra will play the march for the processional of officers at the opening on Tuesday, always an impressive part of convention procedure.

The Rev. Austin O. Long, of New York, uncle of the bride, officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Dupka, and J. R. Walton, Jr., of Cleveland, was his brother's best man.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But which you knew all the time!)

That in certain parts of Japan men and women bathe (nude) in tubs in the streets. Yet, Rodin's statue, "The Kiss," was excluded from an art exhibition because the Japs consider kissing an objectionable thing. (The statue was finally placed in a corner with a screen around it where only people of matured age are permitted to see it.)

That you rarely see a clock or calendar in a speakeasy.

That if the newsreels want a different shot—here it is: In Locust Valley (Long Island) they have a $250,000 fire department and building—all the volunteer firemen being millionaires.

That Greta Garbo's scrawl lured $3 at a recent autograph sale in Germany. Doug Fairbanks' signature drew $7.50—but President F. D. Roosevelt's could entice only $2.50.

That a downtown speakeasy features this sign over the bar: "If you don't see what you want—then the hell with it."

That statistics reveal the average chorus girl is 5 ft. 3, weighs 114, has blue eyes, a 24-inch waist, wears a 4½ shoe and is blonde.

That certain savage tribes consider it proper for their women to wander through the village naked, but when a stranger appears, they scamper to their tents—and return still naked—but with faces painted.

That in New York if the police wanted to be technical, it would be illegal to sell only drugs and food on Sunday. (An old law.)

That Colgate College is located in Hamilton, N. Y., while Hamilton College, is located in Clinton, N. Y. (Just to get you mixed up.

That the auto licenses most difficult on the orbs are New York's—yellow and black. Maryland's the easiest — blue and white.

That O. Henry once observed that a story with a moral usually bores you and then injects a stinger to irritate your conscience.

That more women go crazy in the State of New York than men. And more single men land in the asylums than married men. (Figure that out.)

That a movie producer once refused to make a movie of Abraham Lincoln — because it had an unhappy ending.

That of all persons of recognized genius, 45 per cent suffered from insanity and 90 per cent were psychopathic. (What fun being a moron.)

That poise is what enables you to keep smiling—after the boss has turned you down on that raise. (Nobody can possibly have it!)

That at Roslyn, L. I., there is a steam-heated duck pond! (The private property of a millionaire whose ducks caught cold and died.)

That Maxfield Parrish was once expelled from an art school for decorating the wall with a painting of a castle. By the time they were ready to repaint it he was famous, so it was permitted to stand.

That Herbert Bayard Swope, once one of the better editors, said: "The most successful way of being an unsuccessful journalist—is to try and please everyone." (He quit after learning it was impossible.)

That the artist who designed the NRA posters is tagged Coiner.

That another legend along the brighter side of Broadway is that if you eat a lump of sugar dipped in vinegar it will stop hiccuping.

That you have read that Oct. 11 is the day Bobbie Arnst's final decree from Weissmuller is due. (It's her birthday, too!)

That the New York Times, which hasn't a 13th floor—has never had a failure on the 14th floor—which still is the 13th.

That the "Yaller Dog Blues," by W. C. Handy, was not inspired by a dog of any color—but by a fast Arkansas train.

That people who accept passes from plane companies often spend more than if they paid their way. Pass-takers must agree to ride "only if there is room." (One guy waited a week in Salt Lake!)

That the Sultan of Sulu is the only member of royalty on the payroll of the United States. (He rates $12,500 per year—but for what?)

That his daughter, who was civilized at Smith College in this country, recently returned to her pappy and immediately went native, chucking away her clothes, filing her teeth and painting her face hideously.

That the Walkill Prison (N. Y.) has no walls outside. All prisoners being accepted on "their honor." Once one of them escaped — but returned and begged for readmission. (It was too tough in N. Y.)

That the one holdout on the N. R. A. (Henry Ford) ironically enough received most of the publicity—when the two pretties representing "Miss Liberty" and "Miss N. R. A." landed in all the papers. (Their name is Ford.)

And that the most merciless of the truths is that when you are not good on Broadway—they get wise to you too soon.

Dramatic

Myrna Loy has a leading role in "Penthouse," dramatic film based on the Arthur Somers Roche story running in the Sun-Telegraph. It will head the Penn bill Friday.

Trick Brings Realism

Principals of perspective are used to make realistic a studio stage "shantytown" that is part of "A Man's Castle." It represents a colony near the East River, New York.

The "East River" is a wide trough in the foreground — well, wide enough. From its banks to the rear of the stage Shantytown stretches back, a nondescript collection of makeshift shacks which are life-size in the foreground, but gradually diminish in height and bulk as they recede.

There are some 60 huts, fashioned authentically of old timbers, packing cases, wreckage of cars, covered with old burlap, worn linoleum, tin cans, and other odds and ends from the junk heap or the dump. The streets are of dirt—mud when it "rains"—but there are a few flowers about. These are the "homes" of depression victims, in this case including Spencer Tracy, Loretta Young, and Helen McKellar.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Robert Edmond Jones designed the settings for "Ah, Wilderness," the new Eugene O'Neill play that will have its premiere in the Nixon next Monday, a Theater Guild production with George M. Cohan heading the company. It was Mr. Jones who designed the production of the last O'Neill play, "Mourning Becomes Electra," and he has recently returned East from Central City, Colo., where he designed and directed "The Merry Widow," which was presented as the annual festal play of the region, once a famous mining district. The seat sale for "Ah, Wilderness" will open Thursday.

In the Dominoes, monthly bulletin of an artists' organization of Hollywood, of which Edith Taylor Thomson formerly of Pittsburgh, is secretary, there appears, under the heading "Louise," a most beautiful memorial to the late Louise Closser Hale, a grand trouper. The article follows:

The Old Gentleman had had a hard day. All of the Old Gentleman's days were hard, but it did seem that today there had been so many old people longing for relief—so many timid children to comfort—so many rebellious young people to reassure.

And then late in the afternoon a sparrow had fallen and had been hurt.

The Old Gentleman's Son had held the tiny thing in his strong hands—these hands so quick and clever with the carpenter's tools—so gentle and tender with the little broken wing. The Old Gentleman was very proud of his son. He knew the little bird would have good care.

Well, the hard day was about over. Only one more report to hear—one more messenger to see. All day the Old Gentleman had looked forward to that report. He was sure it would be a good one, and He was pretty sure the messenger would have a couple of funny stories to tell Him. The Old Gentleman did love a funny story.

She made her report, and it was a good one—much work well done—everything left neat and tidy—her people knew her wishes and would carry out her plans. She told her funny stories; they had their laugh together and then settled back into that comfortable silence that only friends enjoy.

The Old Gentleman watched her for a moment.

"You tired?" He said. She smiled: "Well, after all those one-night stands and location trips, it's going to be mighty nice not to have an early call." The Old Gentleman nodded. "Sure," he said, "I know. Well, you worked hard and made most of your talents—can't anyone deny you've earned your rest."

He laid his hand gently on her forehead.

"My, but your hair is pretty," He said. "I always did admire real white hair. Good night, Louise."

"Good night, Father."

The signature is L. W. G. It so happens that Mrs. Lucile Webster Gleason, president of The Dominoes, wife of Jimmy Gleason, the popular comedian, has the same initials, so make your own deduction.

Miss Hepburn Helps Girl To Break

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—The tip has just come in on the year's best Cinderella story. Katharine Hepburn's stand-in and protege, Adalyn Doyle, goes to Twentieth Century Pictures on a long-term contract as an actress.

Miss Hepburn

Have you any idea of the perfect anonymity that goes with the job of stand-in? The stage understudy sometimes gets a chance to go in and play the star's part. The stand-in never. All she does is to let them focus the lights on her.

Chances were 100 to 1 against this girl ever getting a real opportunity. But she did, and very dramatically.

For months Katharine Hepburn has been trying to interest RKO in Adalyn Doyle. Finally, they took a test of her in a long passage from the play "Burlesque."

Via Hollywood's buzzing grapevine, Rufus Lemaire, of Twentieth Century, heard of this. He called the girl and gave her a bit in "Blood Money." When the rushes came through, the studio promptly grabbed her out from under RKO's nose.

Miss Doyle is 20 years old and has green eyes and reddish brown hair. She looks something like Katharine Hepburn, but not enough to hold her back. And she believes in herself.

First news of the injury of Maurice Chevalier in an automobile accident sent Toby Wing rushing to the telephone. She talked to the French star and later went to see him. Toby's dates with Chevalier have her in bad with her former boyfriend, Harold B. Franklin, Jr. On the morning after this column reported them in the Washington Times, young Franklin sent Toby a 500-word telegram wanting to know how come.

Miss Wing

According to the blonde actress, she and Franklin are only good friends. She admits she's a little serious about Chevalier.

Diving Champ In Films

Many waters have flowed past the finish lines since Aileen Riggin, at 14, won the Olympic diving championship, but lately Aileen has not been cleaving her way through the waves as of old.

After turning professional she toured the world, giving swimming exhibitions. In Paris she did an act with Johnny Weissmuller. Another time, she toured with Gertrude Ederle, the channel swimmer. And it was all hard work, more work, she says, than fun.

"Now," she says, "I'm through with swimming, except for fun and exercise. I've lived swimming too long, and dancing is an exciting change."

During her acquatic career, Miss Riggin studied dancing as an aid to diving grace, but her decision to apply for a job in the "Roman Scandals" chorus led to her professional debut, although she was graduated from the school of the ballet of the Metropolitan opera.

"Dancing," she said after a few days' rehearsal, "is hard work, too, but I like it. Yes, I'm going to stick to it—provided I get other jobs."

Winsome Gal In Style

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—There's one place where platinum blondes are not preferred, but that doesn't mean movie dance directors aren't gentlemen and susceptible after business hours.

Dave Gould, who casts and directs the choruses at one of the major studios, explained it this way:

"Sophisticated appearing damsels have no place at all in present-day ensembles. The modern chorus girl must be sweet and winsome. The average platinum blonde has cold, sharp features which appear hard and sophisticated on the screen, contrary to the current demand for sweetness."

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Modern Touch.

"NOW, poopils. If you blease." . . .

Professor Oscar Schmidt raised his violin bow and arched his bushy brows. The bow came down in a graceful sweep, swept up again—and on the third beat, 40 childish hands scraped 40 violin bows over 40 pieces of catgut and began the most awful wail that ever passed for music.

The pupils were boys. They all wore blue serge suits and Buster Brown collars. Their shoes were neatly shined, as befits the children of the "better families;" and neatly plastered hair testified to the fact that 40 mothers had worked heroically that morning to see that mother's angel looked neater than the kid next door.

Prof. Schmidt was a fat, pompous-looking German with mustaches which flowed away from under his nose like waves. He was short, and wore pince-nez glasses, and walked with his stomach away out and his head far to the rear.

To his way of thinking, music could cure all ills, destroy gloom, or even stop a war. After listening to his pupils, a few of the professor's critics were inclined to agree with him.

The pupils, of course, were a bit villainous. Michael Francis McDermott was in the habit of sneaking a small white poodle into the class, and, at the first high note on the professor's instrument, the pooch would howl in harmony to his heart's content. The Jones boy was adept, but he had a nasty habit of forgetting to bring his music.

The bad boy of the class, though, was Pete Sweet. The boy never practiced unless he couldn't help it. He never knew his lesson. He could think of all manner of pranks to play upon the Herr Professor, and he had three-quarters of the class with him in everything he did.

Prof. Schmidt did his best for Pete. He did more than his best. Twice a week, he even made private visits to the Sweet mansion in an effort to drum a little music into the youngster's head. But is was no dice. One year followed another, and after three Prof. Schmidt exploded and told Mrs. Sweet that her darling would make a much better hoodlum than a virtuoso.

And thereby, the professor dropped $15 a week for art's sake . .

That was many years ago. Schmidt kept teaching, always picking pupils from the best families, and, year after year, kids with blue serge suits and Buster Brown collars made hideous noises with a violin and bow, while proud mothers and fathers beamed at the annual graduation exercises.

Pete Sweet grew to be a fine-looking young man. His father wanted him to become an engineer, but Pete snickered and said that he couldn't stand trains. That feeble crack, believe it or not, launched the boy off on a great career.

People began to say that Pete was a card; that he would go to any extreme for a laugh; and that Charlie Chaplin would be forgotten if Pete ever decided to try his hand at the movies.

Pete listened to all this, and liked it. Business, to him, was a disgusting proceeding. On the other hand, laziness he found was just as tiresome. So, anxious to pick something halfway between, he dusted off his violin and became an orchestra leader.

That was the start. People who went to Pete's club found that his music would never cause Guy Lombardo any sleepless nights, but the wisecracking Pete more than made up for this deficiency. He opened his mouth—and the customers howled.

Then came the first radio offer. And shortly after, national acclaim! Somehow, folks in Iowa farmhouses and others in city dwellings found Pete to be a rib-tickling, rip-roaring son-of-a-gun. The fan mail piled in and pictures of Pete, with his violin tucked under his chin, were sent out by the carload.

Every Thursday evening, promptly at 8, would come the dulcet strains of a violin, playing a well-known theme song. Then came the cooing voice of Pete.

"Tweet, tweet!" he would yodel. "This is Pete Sweet.

"Ah, there, ladies and gentlemen. My first saxophonist wants to know why a kiss over the radio is like a straw hat. Well, children, I should say that the answer is: Because it's never felt! Ha, ha, ha! That saxophonist's name is Von Hoopendorf, ladies and gentlemen, which explains why he is always a Teuton. Ha, ha, ha. Yow-zir!"

With music interspered, this went on for an hour. Of course, Pete couldn't really play the violin, but that made little difference. Almost anybody can play a violin, but very few are as witty as the clever Mr. Sweet. Last year, his contract called for $5,000 per program. . . .

If he was surprised to receive a note from old Prof. Schmidt, Pete didn't show it. The letter was written in a wavering script, felicitating Mr. Sweet on his astounding success as a musician, and asking him if he would please honor the graduating class with his presence for a few minutes when the diplomas were being given out.

Pete went. With his tiny Broadway manager at his side, he hopped into his sleek limousine and raced over the roads to the little town where the Herr Professor held forth.

The ovation, of course, was thunderous. The proud mothers and fathers stood and applauded, and the class played a special number called "Welcome" while the professor beamed and waved his violin bow. It was a great sight.

When that was over, Prof. Schmidt made a little speech in which he told everybody that Pete Sweet had always been his star pupil, and that he felt honored to have him present at the exercises.

Then Pete made a speech in which he wise-cracked until old Schmidt laughed so hard that he had to wipe his eyes. And then, seriously, he said:

"But all kidding aside, I want you to know that everything I am, and all my success I owe to this dear, kindly man, Professor Oscar Schmidt—God bless him!"

He left with the cheer still ringing in his ears. He and the manager piled into the limousine and were soon lost to view on the road to New York.

After a while Pete turned to his manager.

"That was swell of the old man," he said quietly. "His welcome came from the heart, I could tell that."

The manager nodded.

"Yeah," he said. "It was pretty nice, all right. But say, Pete. You didn't honestly mean that stuff about owing all your success to Schmidt, did you?"

Pete glared at the little man.

"Of course, I meant it. Every word of it. I owe everything I am to Professor Schmidt."

The little manager's eyes popped.

"Well," he said. "That just goes to show you. Who would ever think an old bozo like that could be a gag writer!". . .

Making Film Iceberg Employs Hundreds

Five hundred plasterers were employed to make imitation icebergs at the RKO Radio lot in Hollywood. One "berg," 216 feet long and 110 feet wide, and containing a complete Eskimo Igloo village, is said to be the largest artificial ice pack ever constructed for the movies and will be used for close-up sequences in Francis Lederer's starring vehicle, "Man of Two Worlds."

Actor Gets the Razz From Own Father

"I hadn't seen my father, nor he me, for nearly two years. In the meantime life had been tough. I had descended from Broadway shows to burlesque comedies. I wasn't so hot and one night I could hardly blame the guy in the balcony for giving me the 'bird.' He kept it up, however, until I became annoyed. I sent a policeman after him. He came back dragging the culprit. It was my own father."

Coming Screen Programs

Clive Brook, Helen Vinson and George Raft are featured in "Midnight Club" opening today in the Sheridan Square.

Gary Cooper, Fay Wray, Neil Hamilton and Frances Fuller have the principal roles in "One Sunday Afternoon," photoplay coming to the Stanley Friday. Gary Cooper is a small town dentist who believes he married the wrong girl until time settles the matter.

Claudette Colbert and Ricardo Cortez have the leading parts in "Torch Singer," opening Friday in the Warner. Miss Colbert is a singer badly used by fate.

Irving Pichel Acts In Harding Film

Irving Pichel, noted actor-writer-director, donned the grease-paint for the first time in several months to play a character role in "Beautiful," the new Ann Harding starring film.

Warner Goes Abroad To Play in Film

H. B. Warner has sailed for London to play the leading role in the talking screen version of "Sorrell and Son," which will be released by United Artists, the same company which presented the silent version of the Warwick Deeping novel several years ago.

Warner gave the finest performance of his distinguished career in the silent "Sorrell and Son," and is expected to repeat his triumph in the sound production of this intensely human drama.

DICKEY OPENS FIGHT TO SAVE SCHOOLS

Collection of data on the financial condition of Allegheny County schools, to be sent later to Gov Pinchot, is being made by County Superintendent of Schools C. E Dickey, he announced today. Supt. Dickey made it plain that he intends to wage a vigorous fight for financial aid to save the schools from disaster caused by the depression.

School districts have been seriously handicapped by the inability to collect taxes, he said. This has resulted in an average decrease of about one-third in available school funds.

Added to this perplexing situation is the fact that county school enrollment this semester is about 3,000 more than last year, with a possibility that the number will be augmented next semester. The total enrollment in the county is 93,000. Officials attribute the increase to the NRA ruling that bars children between the ages of 14 and 16, who formerly could obtain certificates, from getting jobs. In normal times an average of 1,000 children secured these certificates.

But to pay cuts, teachers this year will receive from 10 to 20 per cent below the minimum salary set for teachers by state law, Dickey revealed. He commented upon the fact that Allegheny County is one of the few places where no teachers' strikes have been called.

URGE U. S. FUND FOR SCHOOLS

The budget committee of the Board of Public Education today had under advisement a suggestion by the Rev. Henry E. Nicklean, chairman, and John Lohstetter, secretary of the work relief committee of the Allegheny County Community Council, that federal funds be sought to build new school buildings as a means of unemployment relief.

The suggestion was made at a meeting of the finance and administration committee last night which also heard the annual report of Dr. Ben G. Graham, school superintendent, and deferred action upon a NRA code submitted by state and local school boards.

DOCTORS STUDY SLEEP VICTIMS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Recovered sleeping sickness patients will remain under the watchful eye of public health officials for about two years to determine whether delayed effects of the illness manifest themselves, it was announced today.

So far, health officials and physicians attending cases of encephalitis, have found virtually no unfavorable after effects, but the two-year period of observation was decided upon in the hope of gaining more substantial knowledge of the strange malady.

With the death toll standing at 157 in Greater St. Louis since mid-July, the epidemic continued today to show definite signs of abatement.

BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN

"My Dad's helping the PRESIDENT!"

You can help too—by buying Now the things that you need...

THEY LIVE IN AN AVERAGE HOUSE on an average street—just an average American family. They have an average income—a little money in the savings bank—a small margin left over from the pay-check when the month's bills are paid.

Those are obviously new trousers he is wearing. That's a new belt, too. The shirt is one of half a dozen his mother has just bought. Even the necktie is one he hasn't worn before.

You can see he likes new clothes—he's as anxious to put on a good appearance as any grown-up. But that's not what this boy is proud of. He's proud of the idea back of these new purchases. He knows why they were made at the present time.

His Dad is helping the President! What boy wouldn't be proud of that?

Maybe you don't see the connection. Maybe you wonder what interest President Roosevelt has in a boy's new long trousers, shirt, belt and necktie.

Right now he has a lot of interest. Because these purchases show that his plans for Recovery are working.

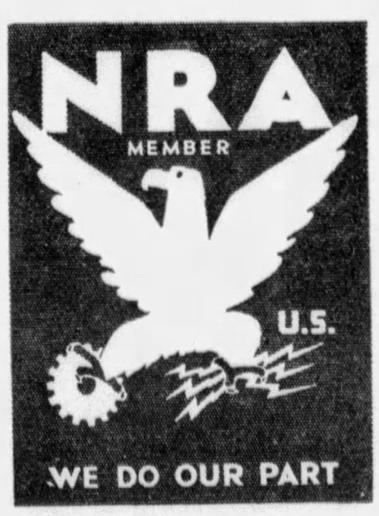
The merchant who sold those things — the manufacturers who made them—have joined President Roosevelt's "partnership" between business and government.

At his request—they have shortened hours, raised wages, added new help. In the face of losses through many months past—in spite of a lower business volume—they have added to their overhead, increased their chance of loss, because the President asked it.

It was a big gamble. Much depended on how quickly and widely people started to buy. These businesses had no magical reserve to draw on.

That's why every father like this boy's dad—every mother like his mother—is helping the President—helping the country—when they go out to buy.

They help because the money they spend enables the merchant and the manufacturer to pay the extra help they have taken on. The money they spend now helps to pay for the goods the merchant bought—and for new goods he must order.



The few dollars that went on to this boy's back—multiplied by the millions of other boys like him—means enough new cash in circulation to keep a large part of our re-employed men on the job and off the relief list.

You can help the President, too. You can help yourself as well. Every bit of buying you do now in September—helps speed up Recovery. Every dollar you spend this month—helps you to live better.

So start helping the President today. There is a simple, easy way to do this.

Figure out the things you need and can afford. Coal for the cellar, provisions for the kitchen pantry, clothes for the kids, new shoes or suits or hats for yourself—it isn't what you buy that counts, but whether you buy—NOW!

Buy in September—and the way to Recovery is made clear. Buy in September—and this country will gain speed in its return to better times.

Buy in September—and you help yourself, your country and your President!

PENTHOUSE -:- -:- BY ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

Durant Criticized By Sue After His Butler Tattles

CHAPTER XI.

The cup in his hand jerked,and he barely escaped spilling its contents. "Not yet," he said. "There are things in my mind, bewilderments, that aren't clear yet, Sue, you can find out something for me. You can find out if Siddall, on his walk uptown day before yesterday, stopped anywhere. If he bought cigarets or used a public telephone, we might be able to demonstrate that he didn't have time to buy a gun from Levitoff."

"Ted Brewster came to see me last night. Tom didn't stop anywhere on his way uptown," she replied. "Is that all you've thought of?"

Something in her tone grated on him.

"There are other matters, but this was the only one in which you could help me."

"You think Levitoff is lying?"

"Don't you know that he is?" he countered.

"Of course he is. Tom didn't kill Miss Montagne, and of course he didn't buy the gun to do it with."

"If he didn't buy the gun he didn't kill Miss Montagne. The crux of the whole thing is there. If he did buy the gun it doesn't inevitably follow that he killed Miss Montagne, either, but it would look bad. So, if there were some way of proving that he didn't go near Sixth avenue —but don't you worry. Some way of proving that will come up. But all I really came in for was to try to cheer you. I don't seem to be doing so, but you want to remember that it takes time to build a case."

"And an investigator has to do all sorts of things, and those things sometimes keep him busy day and night, don't they?"

He stared at her; her voice was altogether too bland and her eyes altogether too innocent.

"Why, yes," he said confusedly.

"And I suppose Miss Waxted told you a lot of important things about Miss Montagne?"

Resents Criticism

Now her voice wasn't bland and her eyes weren't innocent; contempt was in every intonation, in her expression, in every line of her body.

"Miss Waxted?" He was taken completely off his guard, semi-prepared though he had been by the warnings of his own conscience.

"Miss Montagne's friend. The young lady who spent the night with you. I didn't realize that when I asked you to help Tom I might be giving you a new mistress."

He stared at her. "How did you happen to know that Miss Waxted came to see me last night?" he asked quietly.

"You forget that Layton is married to the sister of my maid Marie!" she cried. "And if you want to discharge Layton because he talks to Marie, I'll be glad to engage him myself. Dad needs a valet." Her eyes suddenly softened, and her lower lip trembled. "Oh, Jack, why do you have to be this way? I don't mind—what right have I to mind?—except for your own sake. Layton doesn't mind except for your sake. He hates to see you cheapen yourself. Of course, he shouldn't have told me, but—well, I've been told. And I feel so sorry for you."

Synopsis

Jackson Durant, young lawyer who has alienated the Park avenue set through his spectacular success as "an underworld mouthpiece," has been asked by Sue Leonard, society girl who jilted him, to "save" Thomas Siddall, youthful broker, to whom Sue is now engaged. Siddall, held on a murder charge, had been arrested, gun in hand, when his former sweetheart, Mimi Montagne, a Broadway night club singer, was shot dead on the terrace of a penthouse where Jim Crelliman was "throwing a party." Durant starts his own investigation. Tony Gazotti, grateful because Durant had saved him from the "hot seat" recently, agrees to help the lawyer. Tony introduces Durant to Gertie Waxied, "closest friend" of the murdered Mimi. They go to Durant's apartment where Gertie answers the lawyer's questions. The next day Durant visits Sue.

A milk code for the Pittsburgh district, embracing 20 Pennsylvania counties, all or parts of 10 Ohio counties and three in West Virginia, will be discussed at a hearing before the Federal Milk Commission in Washington next Tuesday.

H. H. Steele, secretary of the Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association, will head representatives of thep roducers, while leading distributors will represent handlers of 75 per cent of the fluid milk used in this district.

LABORATORY TESTS CHECK EFFICACY OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

Show Why This Delicious Cereal Overcomes Common Constipation

There are scientific reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN in preventing and relieving common constipation. Laboratory investigations show that it supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines; and vitamin B to promote appetite, and help tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements aid regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

G.O.P. Malcontents Are Democrats' Hope

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Registered for today's primary election in Pittsburgh are approximately 35,000 Democrats. That is 15,000 more than were eligible to vote in the Democratic state and national primary last year, and in the neighborhood of 30,000 more than were eligible in the last mayoralty campaign four years ago.

Mr. Shields

Some rather wild-eyed optimists, overly enthusiastic because of the tremendous grip President Roosevelt, as leader of the nation and of the Democratic party, has on the people, estimated that 60,000 citizens would register as Democrats in Pittsburgh this year. There never was any substantial reason for expecting that figure, and the canny observers among Democrats, whether classed as so-called organization or so-called independents, never expected it to be attained.

They have realized throughout the present campaign that Republican candidates, not only for Mayor and City Council, but for judgeships and the most minor offices, would be striving to hold their friends in the Republican party for the primary. This drive has been pronounced. It has been exceptionally strong among the anti-organization Republicans who realized that the greater part of the defection to the Democrats would slice their totals in today's balloting.

* * *

November Peril to G. O. P. Primary Victor

It has been recognized always that if the Democrats are to win in November they must do so through the strength of voters who are registered as Republicans, but who will be dissatisfied with the primary. First, however, these Republicans have been endeavoring to nominate their own friends.

It works all ways, so far as registered Republicans are concerned in their November attitude. If the organization wins the nomination many who vote for Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell or Councilman P. J. McArdle today will swing toward the Democratic candidates in the general election. And, despite the pledge of regularity made by Mayor John S. Herron in the event he is defeated, a pledge which personally undoubtedly is sincere, there are organization elements who will refuse to vote for Mr. McArdle or Mr. Mackrell.

That is what Democrats figure on. They recall that in 1929 when the late Mayor Charles H. Kline was the nominee of his party against Thomas A. Dunn the latter received approximately six times the vote there were registered Democrats. This occurred, it should be remembered despite an organization and a war chest almost ridiculous beside what the Democrats will have for November.

A better way to figure the potential threat to the Republicans of the Democratic registration is to use figures which may be illustrative of trends of sentiment.

In 1928 when Al Smith was the outstanding Democrat prior to the national convention a strong drive was made for registration by the same elements who supported President Roosevelt prior to the convention. The effort produced a registration of something like 20,000

1929 Democratic Nose Dive Recalled

But in the next year, when the mayoralty campaign came along, the Democratic sentiment took a direct nose dive. This may have been induced by the resounding defeat administered to Al Smith by Herbert Hoover in the 1928 campaign, or the extreme interest in the Republican primary of 1929, another three-cornered fight. Whatever the reason, the Democratic registration for the mayoralty primary fell to about a fourth what it was the previous year.

In 1932 for the presidential primary the registration again was in the neighborhood of 20,000. If the precedent of the previous mayoralty campaign had been followed, again there would have been an abrupt downward slide for the mayoralty primary.

But the reverse was the case. Instead of falling off, the registration this year shows a gain of 75 per cent, indicating a growing interest in Democratic party affairs.

Whatever the picture is worth, and whatever is value as a weather vane, is in this study of figures which is proving heartening to Democrats this year and imbuing them with the idea that they will have a chance for success in November.

At any rate, it is assured that the coming general election will be the hottest campaign and the closest vote contest the city has seen for years between Republican and Democratic nominees. That summation is recognized by every observer, and is supported completely by the observations of Republicans themselves.

Company-Paid Deputies Carrying Riot Guns As Striking Mine Pickets 'Dig In'

H. C. FRICK COKE COMPANY DEPUTIES AND THEIR ARMS

Two deputy sheriffs—commissioned by the Commonwealth but hired and paid by a coal company in lieu of the abolished infamous coal and iron police—on duty at Leith mine. Notice the riot gun, seldom shown in public, the long, long clubs and the holstered side arms. The uniform on one of the deputies—although few deputy sheriffs go about wearing uniforms in other counties—closely resembles that of the state police. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Evidence that the picket lines are being established with a permanent aspect as the actual noisy lines are beginning to vanish in favor of small groups of pickets around tiny fires on these cold September mornings. Here is one such establishment.

FIGHT AGAINST DEPRESSION NOT OVER

Helen Grimes to Urge Continued Drive for NRA in Air Talk

The battle to defeat depression has only begun and must be carried on through the rest of the year with the support of the consumer, in the opinion of Miss Helen Grimes, chairman of the speakers' committee of the women's NRA division here.

Miss Grimes will repeat her statement that buying now and wisely is the surest way of putting everybody back to work this year in a radio talk as guest of the Sun-Telegraph's Globe Trotter tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. over station WCAE. She believes:

"There is no logic in the talk going around now that the NRA's job is finished and all we have to do is to sit back and watch prosperity come around the corner. I want our speakers to countermand the thought that the consumer's job is done, because the consumer's pledge campaign is nearing its completion.

"The job has just started. People must be reminded again and again that the common sense thing to do is to 'Buy Now.' We should keep this going all year."

Miss Helen Griffin, of the Coronado Apartments, a buyer of women's gloves and leather goods in a downtown department store, said:

"The only way to get money in circulation is by spending it. By spending when prices are low, stocks complete and styles attractive, it will benefit both the merchants and employes. I think people are beginning to stand on both feet—business is better and everybody is showing confidence. Everybody seems more satisfied."

Nina E. McLeod, owner of a dress shop in the Union Trust Building, states:

"We should all try to help the other fellow—it is our patriotic duty. We can't go back. As one fellow puts it, 'either business must get better or we will all be out in Schenley Park eating nuts with the squirrels.'"

Peggy Robinson, of 5201 Westminster place, a debutante, said:

"To be truthful, I don't know much about the 'Buy in September' movement, but from what I have read and heard I think it is a very good thing. We should all do our bit by putting some money in circulation."

"Why not be optimists and throw our pessimism away? We must spend just as much as we possibly can if we want to see prosperity again. I'm for helping President Roosevelt and his New Deal."

Maxine Piekarski, of 2057 Beechwood boulevard, a Carnegie Tech co-ed said:

"I think it's quite a wonderful thing. What we need is to get business started. So if we start in September everything will go right along in the following months."

Meme McCoy, of 5500 Bartlett street, a University of Pittsburgh co-ed, said:

"It's a splendid movement and I personally think that a lot of good will come from it. September is a very good month for all the college girls to buy as they are getting ready for school."

WIVES LIABLE FOR BILLS

Married women who bind their estates for payment of goods are equally responsible with their husbands, Attorney Coleman Harrison last night told the Retail Credit Men's Association in an address in McCreery's dining room. He said the Superior Court had so decided on an appeal from a decision of the Allegheny County Court.

This decision, he said, should end disputes arising when attempts are made to avoid payment by the wife referring the creditor to the husband or vice versa.

J. R. Truesdale, secretary of the association, who resigned, was presented a gold watch by Col. Franklin Blackstone on behalf of the organization. A resolution was adopted lauding Truesdale's four years of service.

Peace-Makers Anxious To Pay A Visit To Paree

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The next peace conference will be held in Paris. That's what the diplomats have been working for.

What is more agreeable and comforting than diplomating at tourists' rates?

There is peace in the purple lights of Napoleon's tomb. There are tears to be shed in front of Whistler's mother and there is intrigue in Mona Lisa's rubber smile.

If there must be war, let us start it in Paris. Two tickets to the Moulin Rouge make all men equal and a trip up Eiffel Tower will cause an international banker to appreciate his shoemaker more.

London, Laussanne, Washington and Brussels have all flopped on the job. Now for the Hall of Mirrors again with a frock coat, striped trousers and a clean shave.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Hope the oil business gets straightened out, for it is tough. Just today in a movie I was making, had a scene where I met an Indian. During our conversation I found out that he was an Osage. That's the rich tribe that lives by us down in Oklahoma. Why, when oil was going good, an Osage wouldnt have even spoken to a poor Cherokee. They used Rolls Royces for trailers.

Will Rogers

See now where the French are about to go off the gold. If we get as much enjoyment out of them going off as they did us, we ought to feel great all winter.

Yours, WILL.

BLIND MAN TO ATTEND PITT

Plans to Pay Own Way by Selling Magazines

A 32-year-old Oakland man, blind since childhood, will enter the University of Pittsburgh night school next week, earning his college expenses during the day by selling magazines.

He is Robert Nelson Gay, of 322 Melwood street, who has just completed his entrance requirements at the University School, 5711 Howe street. There he mastered subjects such as English, French, history, algebra, economics and geometry in spite of his handicap.

"It has been rather difficult working and going to school, but with a college education I believe that I can help myself better as well as others. I plan to major in sociology."

Prof. Reynold Garrison, of the University School, painstakingly helped Gay with algebra and geometry — two very difficult studies for blind persons. Draughtsmen's tools and all sizes of angles cut from cardboard and paper were used in teaching him geometry.

GIANTS, SENATORS HAVE PENNANTS WITHIN GRASP

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

MONACA FIGHTER NEARER TITLE CHANCE

If there still lingered in Eastern fistic minds any doubt that the Pittsburgh district has in Teddy Yarosz the outstanding contender for the world middleweight championship, it must have been dispelled last night by the Monaca boxer's second decisive victory over Vince Dundee, this time in the latter's own backyard in Newark, N. J. In some sections Yarosz had not been given the credit he deserved for that first Pittsburgh win. It was said that Dundee had not been in his best form, or possibly that he had carried Teddy. In going into Dundee's home territory and repeating the triumph in convincing fashion with a clearly earned 10-round decision, Yarosz left no room for further argument as to his right to be rated as the logical challenger for the middleweight title.

Teddy Yarosz

Besides establishing himself as a bidder for the crown, Teddy also did a good turn for the boxing game here and elsewhere, as his victory headed off any possible charges that Dundee had had the brakes on in the earlier Forbes Field bout with a view to playing for a second and perhaps a third match. No longer can there be any question that Yarosz is up there on his merits and worthy of a chance to try to bring back to this district the crown once worn by Harry Greb.

SHARKEY'S COMEBACK PROVES ONLY DUD

It doesn't matter whether Jack Sharkey sincerely believes he could fight his way back to the heavyweight championship circle or returned to the ring last night merely to pick up a $25,000 guarantee. His proposed comeback is a dud anyhow, after the loss of a 10-round decision to King Levinsky last night in Chicago.

It isn't hard to believe now that Sharkey was all washed up when he lost the heavyweight title to Primo Carnera. Retaining even a reasonable part of his old class and speed, he ought to have beaten Levinsky without trouble. The result indicates more strongly that the former sailor is done than that Levinsky belongs in the championship circle. But in one respect, Sharkey still is Sharkey. Figure him for one thing, and he'll do the opposite.

WAGNER RATES HUBBELL WITH MATHEWSON

Knowing of the bygone's great pitchers only by hearsay, Bill Terry hesitated to compare Carl Hubbell with them, though he felt that the star left-hander belonged on any list. However, Bill reveals that during the Giants' final visit of the year to Pittsburgh, Honus Wagner told him that he rated Hubbell with Christy Mathewson and the rest of the immortals. Terry says that confirmed his impressions and now he doesn't fear to class his great southpaw with the best of all time.

Honus Wagner

Memphis Bill agrees that the Senators, man for man, are a better ball club than the Giants, but only until you come to the pitching. He admits that the Giants are not even the best club in their own league. He awards that ranking to the Pirates. But here again he excludes the pitching. Terry says the Giants have lost pennants with better clubs than the one they have today, but he doubts that they ever had a left-hander to match Hubbell, pointing out that Art Nehf, Rube Marquard and Ferd Schupp all had more power behind them than has the present day forkhand ace. Hubbell's failure to show his usual effectiveness yesterday and other times recently is generally attributed to overwork.

AUTOMATIC QUALIFYING PLAN IN DEBATE

The plan to qualify automatically for the national amateur golf title tournament hereafter all players who ever have won the championship, without requiring them to compete in sectional qualifying play, has started another controversy. The main opponents of the proposal are some of the former champions who would benefit if it were adopted.

Jess Sweetser declares that all ex-champions should be compelled to qualify. Max Marston expresses the same belief. And a third to oppose the proposed exemption is none other than Francis Ouimet, this year a lone victim of the present system. Ouimet was the only former champion entered who failed to qualify for the 1933 tournament, losing out by one stroke in the sectional tests in Massachusetts. The chief objection to the plan is that it smacks of commercialism, inasmuch as the entry of any former champion has a certain degree of drawing power, and the United States Golf Association always has been free from commercial taint.

SOPHS BEGIN TO SHINE IN PITT PRACTICE

Now that the Pitt gridders are in their second week of training, the sophomore hopes are beginning to attract attention. Last week, Coach Sutherland kept one tentative lineup intact for the most part, and apparently gave little notice to the yearlings who were out to take a crack at varsity jobs for the first time. Now, however, the Panther mentor is paying considerable attention to the youngsters.

For one thing, Verne Baxter, who played scholastic football at Oliver High School, recently has been getting a chance to run with Pitt's "big" team. The hard-running sophomore end jumped ahead of Bob Timmons and Lou Wojihovsky for the second-string berth, and, if shifted from right end, where he has been understudying Muggsy Skladany, to the opposite side of the line, he may press Harvey Rooker for that terminal post.

GLASSFORD'S DEFENSIVE PLAY IMPRESSES

In fact, even Skladany himself, veteran that he is, realizes that he can't afford to take things too lightly where Baxter is concerned. And Baxter isn't the only sophomore making a good showing. Bill Glassford, a hard-working youngster from Lancaster, O., has stepped very much into the guard picture by reason of his defensive play. A fullback in high school, Glassford has given an excellent account of himself at guard against the varsity in scrimmage sessions, and, while Coach Sutherland is plentifully supplied with guards in Onder, Hartwig, Ormiston and Kutz, he can always use another.

Leo Malarkey

Another promising soph, Leo Malarkey, chief rival of Howdie O'Dell in the race for Warren Heller's old job at left halfback, is not being worked too hard. Malarkey reported several pounds underweight, due to an attack of tonsilitis, and is being allowed to build himself up to his normal playing poundage.

BUCCOS RETAIN SECOND PLACE IN RACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pittsburgh baseball came in like a lion last April, but it's going out like a lamb. A re-arrangement of the playing card which provided a doubleheader between the Buccos and Phillies this afternoon will cause the curtain to be lowered tomorrow when the Dodgers return to run off a washed out game of a week ago.

The Freebooters own a nice advantage over the Bruins in the competition for second place, as the entries near the finishing line. While the lead of the Bucs is given out as being one-half of one game the edge actually is greater, inasmuch as the Cubs dropped two more games than the Pirates.

Eddie Holley stood between the Pirates and a two-way success in the bargain affair of yesterday. Heinie Meine landed a 2-1 victory over Big Jim Elliott in the first scrap, but Holley shut the door in the faces of the locals in the nightcap. The score of this game was 6 to 0.

Another product of the Pittsburgh sandlots is to get a chance with the Pirates. Bearing out the announcement made exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph more than a month ago, Elmer Trapp, crack shortstop of the Dormont club, will be given a thorough tryout by the Buccaneers in the belief that he has the makings of a major league infielder.

They probably will work in that rotation, Hubbell starting the series against the Washington Senators.

CARDS, BROWNS CHECK MARCH OF LEADERS

Associated Press.

Baseball prosperity, represented by the National and American League pennants, was just around the corner today for the New York Giants and Washington Senators, rivals in a dramatic world series just nine years ago.

All the Giants needed to clinch the National League flag for the first time since 1924 was one victory for themselves or a defeat for their only rival, Pittsburgh. Washington, seeking the American League bunting for the first time since its two-year reign in 1924-25, was just half as well off. The Senators needed two victories, two New York Yankee defeats or a combination of one triumph and one Yankee reverse.

MAY WIN TODAY

It was possible neither flag would be clinched today, but the Giants, slated to play their final game at St. Louis, while the Pirates tangled with the Phillies in a double-header, expected to end the National League race by nightfall.

They let just such an opportunity slip through their fingers yesterday, but the 4-3 decision they dropped to the St. Louis Cardinals worried them less than the narrow escape Fred Fitzsimmons had from serious injury.

The veteran righthander held a 2-1 lead with two men out in the second inning when a line drive from Bob O'Farrell's bat cracked him on the neck. Fitz went down in the dirt and lay gasping as his teammates rushed to his aid. Soon he staggered to his feet and was led to the clubhouse where an examination revealed he had suffered no serious hurt.

Herman Bell then took up the pitching burden and the Giants gave him a two-run lead in the fourth on Charley Dressen's double, a sacrifice and Blondy Ryan's single.

BELL CHASED

Herman couldn't stand prosperity and retired in some disorder in the fifth after O'Farrell and Pepper Martin had singled. That brought Carl Hubbell to the mound and for once the slender southpaw was not equal to the occasion. Watkins' double drove O'Farrell across the plate and in the next inning O'Farrell's third straight single, a walk and another safety by Martin tied the score. The Cards won the game in the eighth on Durocher's triple and a single by Carleton, who gave the Giants only two hits in the last five innings.

Following the Giants' lead, Washington also picked up ground, although beaten. They bowed to the St. Louis Browns, 4-2 but moved one game closer to the flag when the Yankees split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox.

GRAY HALTS NATS

Sam Gray, who some weeks ago confessed to a sore arm and thus nullified a transaction by which he was to wear a Washington uniform and thus would have been eligible for a slice of World Series money, held the Senators well in hand all the way although touched for 10 hits.

LOCAL NINE ADVANCES IN N. B. F. TOURNEY

HOFFMAN STARS IN WIN OVER FLINT TEAM

By TOM BIRKS

Bill Hoffman, Immaculate Heart's pitching ace, turned in another great game for the local entry in the National Baseball Federation tournament at Greenlee Field yesterday and handed the Flint (Mich.) outfit its first defeat, 9 to 2. The Pittsburgh team meets Pontiac in a fourth round contest at Greenlee Field at 5 p. m. today. The locals, with three wins and no losses, are favored to win the tourney.

It was a case of too much Hoffman yesterday. Flint had scored 35 runs to win its first and second round games with ease, but in nine innings Hoffman was reached for only seven hits, three of them coming in the second inning to score two runs.

Other third round games found Cleveland winning over Fort Wayne, 4-0; Pontiac defeating Johnstown, 6 to 4, and Youngstown winning a great game from Dayton, 2-0.

The other fourth round games call for Cleveland and Dearborn to meet at Olympia Park, and Flint to play Dayton at Frick Park, both at 5 p. m. The scores:

It was just a breeze for the Books last evening as they won the third game of the playoff series for the City League title, walloping the Dormont nine, 14 to 2, at Olympia Park. The victory gave the Books a lead of two games to one in the series.

The Books hammered Knetzer, Roscoe and Carroll for 18 safe hits, four of which were collected by Harry Geisler. The score:

MURDOCK BAR STANDS

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 19. (INS.)—Frank Murdock, of Natrona Heights, Pa., captain-elect and tackle of the Cornell football eleven, must wait until next season to show his stuff. Cornell authorities announced today that scholastic difficulties would keep Murdock off the eleven this season.

PROS PROTEST LOSS OF STAR

The locals claim Burdick was offered for sale by the Chicago Bears and they closed for his purchase and he was ordered to report here last Saturday. Instead he played for Cincinnati in its first game on Sunday.

Coach Jap Douds will put the finishing touches to his team today as the Pirates square off against the New York Giants in the league opener at Forbes Field tomorrow night.

GIANTS HERE TONIGHT

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 19.—Twenty-five players of the New York Giants football squad broke camp here this morning to leave for Pittsburgh, where, tomorrow night, they open their National League campaign against the Pirates.

Prior to departure, Owen released Hugh Rhea and Bill Seigle in order to bring the squad down to 25 players.

Al Quaill Scores Knockout Victory

Al Quaill, brilliant local amateur middleweight boxer, used the knockout method to hang up his thirty-seventh consecutive victory last night as he stopped Tom Greene in the first round of the feature bout of the amateur show staged by St. Justin's Church, Mt. Washington.

In another good scrap, George Maritzo won the decision over Harry Krause, A. M. A. junior lightweight champion. The summary:

135-pound class—Jackie Walls defeated Johnny Benko; George Martzo defeated Harry Krause.

DUKES POLISH ATTACK FOR WESLEYAN

By JESS CARVER

Messrs. Elmer Layden and Josephus Bach, head and line coaches, respectively, at Duquesne University, are busy these days with one thing and another, but chiefly are concerned with polishing up the offense they intend their Dukes to use against West Virginia Wesleyan's Bobcats here Friday night.

For the past two years, the Bobcats have come snarling up from the West Virginia mountains and clawed the Dukes into submission. They'll lack stars of the individual brilliancy of Cliff Battles and Art Beveridge this year, the lads who were responsible for the Bobcat victories of '31 and '32, but the team is said to be far better balanced than it has been for the past four seasons.

George (Whirlwind) Kelly, who purveys Duquesne's athletic information, is striving to build up the Dukes' mental poise for this game, but, with all due regard to Whirlwind and his efforts, the Dukes will get along far better if their attack can puncture the well drilled line Coach Cebe Ross is sure to toss against 'em Friday.

Verne Baxter, former Oliver High School star, is the lone sophomore to crash the list of the first 22 men on the Pitt squad. Verne has won himself a temporary position at end on the second eleven.

Walter Okeson, of Lehigh University, who drags down a tidy sum annually for bossing the football officials, is in town today and this evening will hold a rules interpretation meeting at the Keystone Athletic Club.

KINGFISH EYES TITLE BATTLE WITH PRIMO

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—King Levinsky, Chicago West Side battler, today had his eye on Primo Carnera's world heavyweight boxing title following his defeat of Jack Sharkey, former champion, in a rough and tumble battle at Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox, last night.

Matchmaker Nate Lewis, of the Chicago Stadium, much impressed by Levinsky's marvelous showing against Sharkey, said he would open negotiations with the Carnera management at once. The bout, if arranged, will take place in the Chicago Stadium this fall. Carnera has met and defeated Levinsky twice.

The defeat practically eliminated the former gob as a heavyweight threat although he has another bout booked with Tommy Loughan at Philadelphia on September 27. His share of the receipts in both fights is $25,000.

Sharkey entered the ring a favorite, but the money of his backers went glimmering in the first round. Levinsky rocked Jack with a hard right and followed with another that floored the former champion for a seven count. Later in his dressing room Sharkey admitted that he never recovered from that first blow. King had Sharkey staggering in the second round when he again scored with rights.

When the bell ended the third round the Boston fighter was so dazed from the constant hammering of Levinsky's fists that he walked to a neutral corner and had to be helped to his seat.

A smarter boxer would have knocked Sharkey out. King failed to take advantage of the opportunities when Jack staggered around the ring in a daze. Sharkey weighed 201 and Levinsky scaled 4½ pounds more.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—I would like to know just what gives the Chi Cubs such high voltage when they are tenting on their old camp grounds. Put the club on the road and you would mistake them for the Cincinnatis if you couldn't read their suits. But bring 'em back alive to Wrigley Field and they've got as much chance of losing as one of those quarter slot machines.

Nick Altrock

Yes, sir, they are great home bodies. Just put a sniff of Lake Michigan in their nostrils and a wad of chewing gum in their mouth and they will knock off the strongest opposition like Delilah took Samson.

If I wanted to clinch the pennant for the Cubs next year I would send out letters to the other seven teams and say:

"On account of us getting train sick, the doctor won't let us travel this season. So come on over to our back yard for the series and we will pay you all expenses."

Boy, it would be a cinch!

HERRERA LOSES TO DUARRY AT ERIE

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Two knockdowns won the decision for Eduardo Duarry, of Erie, over the veteran Tony Herrera, of Chicago, in a 10-round bout here last night. Duarry weighed 138 and Herrera 139 pounds.

NEW TRACK ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—Plans were disclosed today for construction and operation of a $2,000,000 non-profit horse race track here to be sponsored by a club of 400 sportsmen headed by Hal Roach, Hollywood movie magnate. The California Racing Commission has approved the plan. Roach plans to start construction October 15, with the first races to be scheduled about January 15.

YAROSZ REPEATS DECISIVE WIN OVER DUNDEE

TEDDY BATTERS VINCE; HAILED AS CHAMPION

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 19.—Lou Brouillard, the new middleweight champion of the world, has a new "customer," and a fighting son-of-a-sea-cook he is.

Teddy Yarosz is his name, and he can fight! He gave Vince Dundee, best of the middleweight contenders, a real drumming last night. Teddy hails from Monaca, Pa.

Yarosz whipped Vince in Pittsburgh a month ago, and they brought Yarosz into Dundee's back yard last night on a dare that he couldn't do it again.

DUNDEE WELL BEATEN

Dundee made a superb rally in the last three or four rounds, but Yarosz had such a commanding lead in the first six that only a knockout possibly could have brought victory to the brother of the former welterweight champion.

Few men have taken a smacking around with finer courage than did Dundee. He was so spent when he put on his final charge his blows had little or no effect on the young lad from Pittsburgh.

Mickey Walker declared Brouillard is in for a fine night of torment when he meets this new fighter comet which is soaring across the skies. Said Mickey:

"He's got the strangest style I ever saw. He is only 23 years old, never been knocked out in 70 fights, has lost but one decision and that to Eddie (Kid) Wolfe.

"I'm supposed to fight this winner. These middleweights had best look to their P's and Q's, because I'm still the middleweight champion. With two or three fights under my belt I could make 160 again. With only a few days' training for Brouillard, I made 169. That's not far off the reservation."

YAROSZ TOO FAST

Weighing 158¾ to Dundee's 159¾, Yarosz outspeeded his 29-year-old foe and peppered him with so many punches from the second to the sixth round that the Jerseyan, never before defeated in this state, was unable to make up lost ground.

The fifth and sixth rounds were the highlights of a battle that had the fans in an uproar most of the way. Dundee started the fifth by smashing power-house rights to Yarosz' ribs that seemed to bear the knockout sign. Yarosz, however, came back in a spectacular rally, forced Dundee against the ropes and evened up the round by a left-right tatto of blows on the inside.

In the sixth, Yarosz must have landed 50 blows on all parts of Dundee's anatomy. He gave everything he had in an attempt to end the scrap, but the clever Dundee managed to weather the storm.

SEEDED NET STARS WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Third round hostilities feature this afternoon's bill in the eleventh annual Harvard Cup net tourney for the Allegheny County interscholastic singles crown, the school stars putting in another day on the Pitt courts, before moving on to Shady Side's Fox Chapel lot tomorrow.

The Harvard Cup play got under way auspiciously yesterday, 12 actual contests and four defaults cutting down the starting field of 36 to an even score. Favorites emerged without serious difficulty from the inaugural competition, Ralph Bald and Bob Burnett top seeded stars, both winning.

Only two matches were reeled off at Stanton Heights yesterday. Bob Lampus and Bud Leyda defeated Jack Redmond and Art Glaser, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, and Frank Broida and McCook Reed defeated Jack Beatty and Bill Spindler, 6-2, 6-2.

The Harvard Cup summary:

First round, upper half—Ralph Logan, Allegheny, defeated William A. Weber, Duke Prep, 6-2, 6-0; S. K. Pollock Arnold, defeated J. Robb Wilson, Central Catholic, 6-3, 6-1.

Lower half—Ralph Bald, Mt. Lebanon, defeated Robert Merchant, Wilkinsburg, 6-1, 6-0; James S. Holt, Schenley, won from William Habel, Crafton, by default.

Second round, upper half—Robert Burnett, Wilkinsburg, defeated Charles W. Wilder III, Arnold, 6-1, 6-4; Ray McCollighan, Duke Prep, defeated Maynard Callen, Perry, 6-3, 6-2; Ralph S. Henderson, Edgewood, defeated William Pond, Clairton, 6-0, 6-1; William Miller, Taylor Allderdice, defeated John Wray, Schenley, 6-4, 6-1; Don C. Borland, Edgewood, defeated Robert McVey, Clairton, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5; John Chatham, Perry, won from Robert Culp, Bellevue, by default.

Lower half—Lewis Way, Coraopolis, defeated Michael Konar, Duquesne, 9-7, 8-6; John Mogan, Carrick, won from John D. Davis, Crafton, by default; Allerton Miller, Shady Side Academy, defeated Eugene Riedsen, Turtle Creek, 6-0, 6-0; James Arenberg, Shady Side Academy, defeated William Garland, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-2; Charles Ammon, Coraopolis, won from Dudley E. Weiss, Crafton, by default; Paul DeJohn, Mt. Lebanon, defeated Floyd Schake, Turtle Creek, 6-1, 6-0.

Defeating Ken Kitenour, of South Hills, twice yesterday, Bernard Greenberg, of Taylor Allerdice, won the city scholastic tennis championship. Greenberg won 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 and 1-6, 6-0, 6-4. The double defeat system used in the tourney was responsible for the doubleheader finale.

In the men's singles, Bill Moll defeated William Delehanty, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, and Charles Badene downed John Degankolb, 6-4, 8-6.

CITY LEAGUERS PREPARE FOR OPENERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

The regular season in the City High School League not scheduled to get under way until next week, 11 of the 12 members of the local circuit are hard at work tapering off for a flock of non-league and intersectional frays listed for disposal Friday and Saturday.

Of the 12 members enrolled in the local circuit, South Hills is the only one not slated to see action this week-end. A list of the games carded this week for members of the City League follow:

FRIDAY

South at Trinity.
Dormont at Langley.
Fifth Avenue at Bellevue.
Carrick at Peabody.
Braddock at Westinghouse
Perry at Allderdice.

SATURDAY

Schenley at Wilkinsburg.
Allegheny at Ambridge.
Oliver at Turtle Creek Union.

One team that is going to bear watching in the City League race this season is South High School, where Coach Grover C. Washabaugh has at his disposal a veteran squad.

South had a lot of misfortune in last season's race, losing several games in the closing minutes of play as a result of bad breaks.

The Tenth street gridders, one of the few City League schools handicapped by lacking a home playing field, will tackle a tough assignment Friday when Trinity, of Washington, is met at Washington.

Two of the City League schools will oppose class AA opponents on Saturday, while another will be the attraction of the 1932 class A champion of the W. P. I. A. L. Schenley plays at Wilkinsburg and Oliver at Turtle Creek Union, both class AA opponents, while Allegheny faces a real job in its game with Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge eleven. Ambridge defeated Monaca last Saturday, 47-0, for its tenth successive victory.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Colleges which will have the football spotlight trained on them this fall include Chicago, where Clark Shaughnessy succeeds Amos Stagg as head coach; Princeton, which will be enjoying the second year of its rehabilitation at the hands of Fritz Crisler, and Temple University, where Pop Warner will wave his magic wand . . . It must seem strange at Chicago to have a new coach after Stagg's 40 years on the job . . . Reports have it that Chicago's material is better than it has been in years and hopes are high on the Midway.

Johnny Napoleon

Johnny Napoleon, the new boxing coach at Duquesne University, started in at Forbes School and then went to Peabody High School and then to State College . . . Now he's attending the Dukes' Law School . . . It seems he can't get along with merely educated fists.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, making their debut in the National Professional Football League, aren't going to "paper the house" to make a showing in their first season . . . In fact, there won't be any pass list at all, at all . . . Word came from Business Manager Dick Guy today that it has been decided that, in view of the fact that admission prices have been placed at a sufficiently low level to fit almost anyone's pocketbook, there will not be any Annie Oakleys . . . Looks like a page out of the New Deal Book.

Judge Walter P. Steffen, who, like Bob Waddell, is a former football coach at Carnegie Tech, is pulling for Bob's nomination for City Council in today's primary . . . In a message to this department he says he thinks the same qualities which go to win football games on the field of battle should carry a man far in any walk of life, and Bob has 'em . . . Elmer Anderson, of Greensburg, is a sophomore center on Pop Warner's team at Temple.

With Pittsburgh set to view its first real professional game tomorrow night when the Pirates meet the New York Giants at Forbes Field, this tabulation of points in which the professionals will differ from the collegians in observing the rules should be interesting: 1—Goal posts back on goal line. 2—Forward passing permitted from any point behind the line of scrimmage. 3—Play is not dead until player is downed. 4—Use of hands on defense and flying block and tackle are not barred. 5—Clipping penalty remains 25 yards.—HARRY KECK.

BOXER DIES AFTER BOUT

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Whitlow Birdsall, 27, welterweight boxer from Decatur, Neb., died today in a hospital as a result of a basal skull fracture suffered in a bout with Bud Lymer, of Sioux City, last night. Birdsall, knocked out, cracked his head against the wooden floor boards of the ring.

THE BIGGEST MONTH IN OUR HISTORY

IN August, the American Oil Company sold a greater total of AMOCO-GAS and Orange AMERICAN GAS than during any other month in its history.

This was exclusive of any sales in the new territory added by recent consolidation with Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company.

And also in August, 49.1% more AMOCO-GAS was sold than in June 1933 the month before the AMOCO-GAS premium was reduced 2¢.

This confirms public approval of a policy of marketing superior products, advertising them fairly, and selling them at the lowest prices consistent with their quality.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS ERRATIC

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Ghosts of uncertainties scampered through the security markets today and the rustling of their mysterious garments brought shivers to the more timid traders.

There was actually little to account for the erratic movements of stocks. The share market was only moderately irregular during the first hour, but there was a sharp and rather weird break in the second, which flooded the list with losses of 1 to 3 or more points. For half an hour the selling was fast. Then short covering steadied the leaders and a moderate rally retrieved some of the more severe declines. The activity, however, dwindled noticeably on the recovery. The sudden relapse apparently found no answer in brokerage circles. Grains and cotton were barely steady. The dollar, while a bit easier, displayed some resistance in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were again heavy.

Most of the mining shares sagged with the rest of the market and the volatile Homestake slumped 20 points at one time. Noranda, however, managed to get up a point. There was little to choose from in the various stock categories. Issues off 1 to 2 or more included American Telephone, United States Steel, Allied Chemical, American Can, Case, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Industrial Rayon, Du Pont, Western Union, United States Smelting, Santa Fe., Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, National Distillers, Consolidated Gas and United States Industrial Alcohol, Freeport Texas and Texas Gulf Sulphur were up 1 to 2 points and the oils were not too depressed.

"Switching" and "hedging" were two words frequently heard in the discussions of market observers. Both weer supposed to account to a large extent for the spasmodic declines in various stock groups. Many investors and traders were said to be basing their operations on the assumption that currency inflation is a certainty and have been getting out of issues that may not be benefited by this development and into ones that stand a chance of substantial improvement.

In line with the efforts to anticipate further depreciation of the dollar, bankers call attention to the activity of some foreign gold bonds during the past several weeks. Loans of such countries as France, Holland and Switzerland, interest on which are now payable in gold, have been making new highs almost daily under the demand from American buyers. Holders of these bonds, of course, expect to see values of their maturities rise in proportion to the decline in the gold value of the dollar. Some of these bonds of the gold standard countries, with coupons ranging from 5 to 7½ per cent, are selling around $1,475 per $1,000 par value bond.

While most financial observers are still cheerful regarding sound domestic stocks for the "long pull," some of them feel that near-future disbursements of many of the larger corporations may be affected adversely by the workings of the NRA. With the campaign to increase employment and, at the same time, minimize the advance in prices so that wages can catch up with the procession, it is felt that less attention will be paid to dividends during the next few months and more to the consolidation of general economic and social gains.

WHEAT SHOWS PRICE GAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 19. — Wheat prices averaged higher early today after an irregular start. Inflation possibilities continued to exert a bullish influence, and indications pointed to unfavorable weather Northwest. Opening at ⅛ off to ⅜ up, wheat afterwards held near the initial limits. Corn started ¼@¾ lower, and subsequently altered little.

Many nervous changes fractionally above and below $1 a bushel for May delivery of wheat were later followed by a downward swing of more than 2 cents a bushel from $1.00⅝.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. Provisions lacked support.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Representatvies of member banks of the New York Clearing House Association today approved a proposed change in the organization's constitution which will cut in half the fee now charged out-of-town banks for making loans on call for their account on stock exchange collateral.

Under the proposed amendment, which is to be ratified by member banks at another meeting tomorrow, the out-of-town banks will be charged 25 per cent of the interest received, but not less than ¼ of 1 per cent so long as the call loan rate is 2 per cent or less.

BANKER AGREES WITH HEARST ON REFLATION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—Like the rest of the country, California is extremely inflation-conscious.

There is widespread belief that William Randolph Hearst in his coast to coast radio broadcast on the subject on Saturday contributed much to the clarification of the subject. I find among leading financiers here genuine sympathy with his demand for further cheapening of the dollar.

Mr. Rukeyser

George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, an outstanding financial institution of the West, said to me:

"I was in Pasadena when Mr. Hearst spoke. I listened attentively to what he said, and am in thorough agreement with him. I think his presentation was admirably lucid and well balanced. I am in entire sympathy with his desire to see the purchasing power of the dollar cut down, and I believe the legal machinery under the Thomas amendment to the farm bill to accomplish this should promptly be set in motion.

"Numerous bankers here and in San Francisco are likewise in favor of a sensible and controlled reflation."

FAVORS GOLD ACTION

Queried about techniques for revaluing the dollar, Mr. Cochran, who has had more than forty years of experience as a lender, said that he was not a monetary expert, but was inclined to think that reduction of the gold content of the dollar might prove effective.

Pointing to the need for the change, Mr. Cochran said business needed such equalization between values at the time debts were created and values now. He pointed out that well selected collateral had remained intrinsically good, but that the value of money, in which the loan was measured, had risen sharply in value. As a result, such loans were under water, and the whole business mechanism was out of kilter.

SEES BUSINESS SPUR

"The inordinate rise in the purchasing power of money during the depression period puts business out of balance. Business is like a wagon with three small wheels and one huge wheel. Naturally it cannot run smoothly under such conditions."

Mr. Cochran expressed the opinion that reflation—or bringing the purchasing power of money nearer where it had been when debts were contracted—would result in a quickening of exchange of commodities and property—and a more normal flow of business.

As a result, he said, banks would see a rise in their assets and in those of their borrowers, and insurance companies would witness a quickening of construction activities. Mr. Cochran pointed out an inability on the part of his own company to get sufficient good capital loans, and as a result cash has been piling up unprofitably, having increased from a normal of $600,000 to $7,000,000.

ACTIVITY BLOCKED

Mr. Cochran thought monetary factors had been preventing normal activity in building as well as in commerce. He said:

"I suppose some people will be afraid to adopt this reflationary policy on account of a rise in the cost of living, but, if this occurs, salaries and wages will promptly be raised. We increased pay generally in the prosperous twenties, and business concerns, once more in the black, would cheerfully equalize the pay of their employes again."

Mr. Cochran made it clear that he was opposed to reckless printing press inflation such as occurred in France and Germany, but favored a scientific, controlled revaluation of money.

Penthouse

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

"Really? Have you seen Miss Waxted? If you had [illegible] couldn't be sorry for me."

"Now you're being cheap, [illegible] that isn't like you."

"It isn't like me to accept criticism from you or anyone else about my actions!" he cried. "I suppose it was all right for Tim Siddall to have an affair with Mimi Montagne."

Still Has Faith

"That isn't worthy of you, Jack. He broke with her. You aren't trying to intimate that you believe the story that he went back to her?"

"Of course I'm not. I'm ashamed of myself for letting you dream I had such a thought. Only it hurts a little that you should be so quick to censure me. And suppose I told you that if Miss Waxted came to see me it was because I wanted to question her?"

"If you ask me to believe that, Jack, I'll believe it," she answered.

"You still have some faith in me, then?"

"Would I ask you to save the life of the man I love if I lacked faith in you?" she countered.

Something in her voice made him tremble inwardly, and blind rage possessed him that she should have the power still to stir him.

"Well, I won't ask you to strain your credulity so far," he said savagely. "And I won't discharge Layton; I suppose he considers that he was acting for the best; that you would persuade me to abandon my wicked ways. But those wicked ways are very delightful. I resent very much that anyone should try to wean me from delight. God knows there's little enough of it in this world. And there are some clients who will not insist that the person they retain carry around with him a certificate of morality."

"I'm not asking that; I'm asking nothing except that you save Tom."

He stared at her. "And I'm promising nothing except that I will save Tom if he's innocent. And I know he is," he added hastily.

Interested in Durant

He rose abruptly but she held out a detaining hand.

"Forgive me, Jack. Only, Layton tells Marie so much and Marie tells me. You may not believe it but I've always been interested, always anxious to know all about you. And until this morning there was nothing but drinking. I don't suppose I should mind the other; I haven't any right to mind. I really don't mind. And I'm willing to believe that she's delightful. Is she delightful, Jack?"

He grinned at her. "I think the nicest thing about a good woman is her interest in what she thinks is bad," he said.

"Good? I don't know that I'm good. Does the fact that we haven't done certain things make us good? Does the fact that we have certain things make us bad? I can't believe that you would be—friendly—with a bad woman. In fact," and to his amazement her eyes twinkled, "a girl who shows as good taste as Miss Waxted can't be really bad."

And upon that note he left her. And how was he to know that she was weeping before he had entered the elevator? For that matter, how was she to know that never in his life had he hated himself so much as now?

* * *

The faint hum that bounced gently off the roof of Layton's mouth to seep softly, yet not too musically, through his closed lips, ceased abruptly. The valet's body also ceased its forward motion. Perpendicularly it gained two inches as he rose upon his toes. The rising motion took the place of an exclamation of astonishment.

Then the surprise indicated in every line of his teetering figure gave way to dismay. Jackson Durant slept upon his living-room couch only when he was too intoxicated to stumble into his bedroom. More than dismay showed in the valet's eyes. Sorrow was also there. The finest man that ever breathed, yet so weak . . . And he was engaged in a task for Miss Sue, too—a task that meant her happiness and the life of her lover. How could Durant yield to his weakness now?

There, at the foot of the couch on which his master sprawled, was a small table on which stood the evidence of guilt; a bottle of Scotch and a glass in which high-ball dregs still remained. Now a faint puzzlement flashed across Layton's face. Not more than two drinks had been poured from the bottle. And as, mechanically, Layton had checked up the supplies in the liquor closet this morning, only one bottle of Scotch had been missing. That meant that a mere trifle of a couple of drinks had so befogged Durant's brain that he had been unable to find his way to his bed.

Layton Bewildered

Layton's brows were divided now only by a deep crease above his nose; he ceased teetering back and forth and tiptoed to his master's side. He bent over and scrutinized the face of Durant. It was pale, not flushed as ordinarily it was after a night of drinking. And his breathing was regular and deep. Nor did there come from between his faintly parted thin lips the slightest odor of alcohol. The valet straightened up and walked toward the closed bedroom door. His hand was on the knob when Durant spoke to him.

"I wouldn't bother to go in there, Layton," said Durant. "And must you breathe in my face? Sleep is a shy mistress, Layton, who flees at intrusion."

He was sitting up on the couch now, and his slippered feet had swung to the carpet.

"I know. The tottering feet failed to carry the body to the bed-chamber. And behold the evidence." Durant's slim fingers rested lightly on the whisky bottle. "And yet, Layton, you will never become my most valued assistant unless your powers of deduction improve." With thumb and forefinger he measured the amount of Scotch that had been poured from the bottle. "You have no observation, Layton. Would a juvenile jolt like this knock me out? Why, you've seen me down a whole bottle——"

"I knew it wasn't that, sir," protested Layton. "And I leaned over you just to make sure, and when I found it wasn't liquor I meant to look in your bedroom."

Durant shook a monitory finger at him. "And what would the mother of Jackson Durant Layton say if she knew that you, the pink pattern of paternal propriety, sneeked a peep? Let us go further into the matter. Suppose that in yonder chamber reposed—as your acumen, which a moment ago I unjustly minimized, led you to suspect—a guest? What were you going to do then?"

The valet's pale face burned. "I'm not a peeper, Mr. Durant. I—I just—well, I was bewildered."

THE FIRST RAILROAD TRAIN IN THE UNITED STATES

While Jacksonian democracy, strengthened by the newly-admitted states of the midwest, represented the power of the farmers, the steam engine, locomotive, railroad and other technical inventions began to prepare the path for the supremacy of industry in the machine age.

Above: The first train run in the United States in 1830. (United States History.)

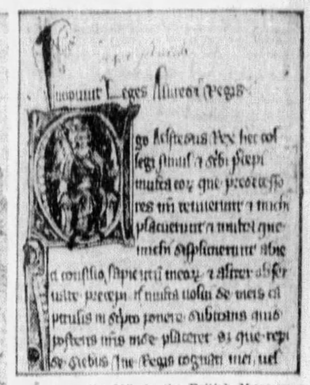
TURENNE AT BATTLE OF THE DUNES (1658) (World History)

Turenne was one of the most successful generals of the "Sun-king," Louis XIV of France. He fought the Italians, Spanish, Germans and English. Above he is shown at the battle of the Dunes (near Dunkirk) that resulted in Spain ceding part of Netherlands (Flanders) to the French.



From the MS. in the British Museum.

ALFRED THE LAW-GIVER

Alfred of the Anglo-Saxons was not only ruler (871-901), but legislator and teacher. Like Charlemagne of France he gave learning to his people. The degree of intellectual impulse, imparted by him is most noteworthy, as he was the mainspring of the entire machinery of education of his time. Above is a facsimile of the first lines of his law code. (Literature.)

DIAGRAM OF PARAMECIUM

There are some 15,000 kinds of single-celled animals or protozoa, for which the paramecium is one representative. It is a giant among them, just visible to the naked eye. (Woodruff: Found. of Biology.)

WATER MAIN AND SEWER PIPE

Note the vent A and trap G; the former ventilates the sewerpipe inside the house, the latter prevents the entrance of gases from the street sewer. (Keene: Mechanics of the Household.) (General Science.)

PRODUCTION OF WATER GAS AND SUCTION GAS

Water gas is a mixture of the combustible hydrogen, carbon-monoxide and methane, accompanied by the non-combustible nitrogen and some carbon dioxide. It is obtained by blowing air and steam through incandescent coke in a producer. The chemical reactions are: $C+2H2O=CO2+2H2$; further $CO2+C=2CO$; also $C+H4=CH4$.

Suction gas consists either of a mixture of carbon monoxide and nitrogen or of the constituents of the water gas depending whether only air or air and steam are led through the producer by the suction effect of a pump or an internal combustion engine.

THINNING AND CROPPING OF TREES

Left: Low method: The smaller and defective trees of this even-aged stand are cut out each 10 years for pulpwood, firewood, etc., giving space for the stronger trees to grow. The final cut produces saw-timber of good size and value.

Right: High method: The trees are of different ages. Every 10 years the larger trees are cut out to give space to the others to grow (common practice). Trees to be cut are shaded.

COAL GAS

By heating bituminous coal in a closed retort, coal gas is liberated while coke remains, containing about 80% carbon besides ash. The raw coal gas contains: Hydrogen (H) 43-55%, methan (CH4) 25-35%, carbon monoxide (CO) 4-11% (heat producing constituents); olefine, acetylene (C2H2) and benzene (C6H6) together, 2.5-5% (illuminants); nitrogen (N) 2-12%; oxygen (O) 0-1.5%; carbon dioxide (CO2) 0-3%; carbon disulphide (CS2) 0.02-0.04% (permanent impurities); ammonia (NH3) 0.7-1.4%; hydrocyanic acid (HCN) 0.05-0.15%; hydrogen sulphide (H2S) 0.9-1.7% (impurities to be removed). Diagram shows apparatus to generate and purify the coal gas. (Partington: Inorganic Chemistry.)

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Walk carefully, look up and down before you step off the curb—make it one of your good habits! Caution your friends to be careful. And most important of all, ask everyone you know who drives a car to drive with his car under control all the time.

A good campaign for all Junior Patrols is a street and home safety campaign. Put up signs, talk about walking carefully and driving safely to everyone you know.

Fellows, we are still looking for children who can play musical instruments to play with the Junior Patrol Orchestra. When all is ready, the orchestra will play over the air with the Junior Patrol program. Send us your name if you play.

Mary Stenibach, of 7145 Bennett street, is a new Junior Patrol captain. She sends 10 pledges and tells us that she was elected captain at the first meeting. We hope you have a successful patrol, Mary, and we would like to hear what you do to have fun and help others.

Margaret Willhauser, of Conestoga road, Wilkinsburg, sends in eight pledges for her Junior Patrol club. But why only eight, Margaret? According to our records you are not a captain yet and you only need 10 members to be elected one. Just as soon as you have two more members send us their pledges. And let us know when someone is elected Patrol captain.

Emma Massa, of 7331 Idlewild street, Homewood, writes:

"I am sending in nine names and pledges for your Junior Patrol. I am interested in your club, and I would like to supervise one, although I am 18 years old. Some of my hobbies are dramatizing, blues singing, dancing, piano playing, and anything of entertainment value."

Send in the names of any of your friends who would like to have an audition for singing over the radio, Emma.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am,
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Date of Birth ..... Address .....

School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — A Too Old Subject

YOUR FATHER IS LATE FOR SUPPER AGAIN. I'LL BET HE'S TROTTING AROUND TOWN WAVING THAT SILLY TELEGRAM AND EXPLAINING HIS THEORY THAT THE BOGYMAN MADE AWAY WITH OAKDALE.
WELL MOTHER, THAT TELEGRAM DID SOUND ODD.
EVERYTHING THAT MAN EVER SAID OR DID SOUNDED ODD, BUT WHY GET EXCITED SIMPLY BECAUSE FOR ONCE ALL OF THIS FAMILY AGREES ON IT?
I MEAN....WELL, MONTGOMERY EL DORADO TOLD ME THE DAY BEFORE WE GOT THAT MESSAGE THAT HE'D GET IN TOUCH WITH HART—
OH DARLING PLEASE DON'T TELL ME YOU'D EVEN IMAGINE THAT AN IMPORTANT MAN LIKE MR. EL DORADO WOULD WASTE HIS VALUABLE TIME MIXING INTO SOME HULLABALOO OVER ANYONE LIKE OAKDALE.
HE TOLD ME HE KNEW WHERE HARTFORD WAS, AND DAD DIDN'T KNOW THAT.
THE VERY NEXT DAY DAD GOT THE STRANGE MESSAGE, AS YOU MAY REMEMBER, IT SAID—AS PER ORDERS OF YOUR AGENT...
PEGGY, PLEASE! INSTEAD OF REMEMBERING THAT MESSAGE, I'M TRYING TO FORGET IT. I'VE HEARD YOUR FATHER REPEAT IT SO OFTEN THAT I KNOW IT BACKWARDS. AND I DON'T MIND SAYING THAT IT SOUNDS EQUALLY BATTY EITHER WAY.

KRAZY KAT — Talking Through His Hat

Can Such Things Be?

Commissioner Doran has no fear that the supply of domestic liquor will be exhausted.

But he will admit there has been a terrific drain on it for the last 13 years.

There are four million gallons of the old Kentucky stuff that makes the Blue Grass lads think all race hosses are fast and all the ladies beautiful.

The Commissioner explains that proper blending of the four million will make fifteen million gallons.

That's what prohibition has done to us. We used to measure it by quarts. Now, we think of it in gallons.

Even through rectification the fifteen million can be made into twenty-five million gallons. We are right back where we started from. That's just what we objected to in 1926.

The law solemnly states, avers and testifies that all bonded spirits must be four years old before it takes a walk home under your arm.

However, and under the other arm, there are no restrictions against selling new whisky in barrels. We don't know why this should be nor why they bothered to pass the first law. We never did understand the law anyway.

By pouring old wine into more elastic figures the Commissioner says the supply can be hoarded until the rye and bran mash chefs get the vats cooking. Of course, all these statistics are dependent on the final votes of the states. Thirty-six must bow the knee and bend the elbow. Otherwise, pay no attention to this article or the Commissioner and continue to do business through the old, regular channels.

Twenty-five million gallons of beezer shellac seems like an overdose of chemicals. Yet, they tell us that these five great lakes will not last the year out. We can feel our hat getting tighter and our shoes looser.

There was a time when two fingers were enough. Now, they're going to order it by the barrel and take swimming lessons.

There was a time when just a nip was plenty. In the morning, you would probably sample a little hair off the dog that bit you the night before. Now, they are going to waive all the conventions, all the rules, all the etiquette and keg themselves delirious.

Think of twenty-five million whiskallions galasky. Think of only a thousands whallions of millsky. Or just take one gallon and try to think.

March of the Buyers Is Producing Benefits Throughout the Country

ARE YOU following the march of the buyers — its steady forward sweep — gaining breadth and pace and momentum with each day that passes?

You will find it told in the trade reports—ordinarily of little interest except to merchants, bankers, speculators and such like, not to the general reader who turns to subjects with more human appeal, more drama, more action.

This may be true in ordinary times,—but not today. All the "drama" of our lives—at this hour—all the "action" which seems worthy of our powers, for the present, is centered in the mighty march of the buyers, now going on throughout the land.

A great people—great of heart and mind—have decided to march out of a situation which cannot hold them in check, a situation of temporary defeat which belies their energies and qualities as a people. They are determined to abandon the swampy ground of confused purposes, misdirected powers, frustrated efforts, and to leave behind them a depression, now seen to be largely artificial, and, in any rational view, as well as use, of our economic potentialities, unnecessary.

THE PEOPLE are buying — buying American goods, wares and merchandise from American merchants—American products from American producers and workers, and the effects are instantly apparent from one end of the country to the other.

Unemployed workers by the million have been called back to work. The factory wheels are turning again. Wages are flowing into the tills of the storekeepers. The weekly totals of trade are rising. Shoes, clothing, provisions and up through the catalog of consumers' needs to automobiles, electric energy and railroad transportation—it is the same blessed and re-assuring story—goods in increasing movement, money in broadening circulation, percentages of reviving trade in a steady climb.

It is not so much a matter of where you are in the course of a journey as what direction you are going in. Better to be at the bottom of a hill, going up, than at the top, coming down: we have not been at the bottom, by any means, but for a long time, we've been going down. Now, we're going up, not yet so fast as we soon shall be—but unmistakably, surely and with steady acceleration—upward!

THANK GOD for it! Praise be to the deep, planted virtues of our people, who can discern duty when it beckons, and have the power within themselves of instant and united response, when once they discern it. No halting, no hanging back ever marks their course from that moment on. The "Buy Now" movement which started this month has exceeded all predictions, all anticipation. It must not falter. It will not. The people will see to that!

How stirring a spectacle it is—the self-evoked energies of a great people, the awakening sense of their own power—the power to take a bold and decisive tone in the ordering of their affairs, to mark their own course, to apply their own expedients, to captain their own deliverance!

Speed it on. Sustain it. Support it.

Be Sure to Vote Today

The Polls Will Be Open Until 8 O'Clock This Evening, Daylight Saving Time

Too many citizens are in the habit of shirking the duty, with the result that not infrequently public officials are chosen by a minority of the people eligible to vote,

That is one of the things that are responsible for bad government. If all the people that are eligible to vote did their duty there would never be any cause for anxiety as to the result of elections. The consensus of the community is reliable.

Often a true consensus is not obtained because many independent citizens who, when they do vote, vote according to the dictates of intelligence and conscience, absent themselves from the polls. The elections are consequently controlled by the henchmen of the political bosses and machines, who do not seek the welfare of the community but selfish personal advantages.

Vote today, even if you believe that the candidates of your choice, or the party in which you are enrolled, have no chance of winning.

Try to free your mind of prejudice and of irrelevant issues that have no real bearing on the fitness of the candidates to give good service.

Vote early if possible—but vote. The polls will be open until 8 o'clock this evening, daylight saving time.

Keep your eyes and ears open, and if you detect violations of the election laws, report them promptly to the proper authorities.

The Sun-Telegraph solicits the co-operation of election boards in giving the results of the election to the public at the earliest possible moment. A representative of the Tri-State Election Service, bearing credentials, will call at the polling place for the returns.

Let us have a full, honest vote, honestly counted, and promptly reported.

A New Jury of Award

In violation of precedent the Carnegie Institute has chosen as the jury of award for the international exhibition of paintings, to open on October 19, directors of three important American art museums. The jury heretofore has been composed of painters.

The public, we believe, will welcome the change. It holds out the hope that different standards from those that have obtained in recent years will be used in choosing the prize-winning pictures.

One does not have to be a cook to know if the pie tastes good. And by the same token it is not necessary to be a painter to determine if a painting is good.

Let us imagine a jury of cooks called upon to award prizes in a competition of products of the culinary art. A little blase, perhaps, and looking for something new and unusual, they can be fancied as saying: "Let us not concern ourselves with the taste of these dishes, but consider instead their appearance, the way in which they are garnished, and how they will look on the table." The result might well be that the prizes would go to dishes that from a gastronomic standpoint were inferior.

Something of that sort seems to have occurred in the selection of the prize-winners by the juries of painters at the recent Carnegie Internationals. Pictures were chosen that the public found neither beautiful nor interesting nor lifelike, and the protests, not only of the public but of artists themselves, have become more and more indignant and vehement.

We suspect that this protest has had more than a little to do with the change from a jury of painters to a jury of museum directors who more nearly appreciate what the public likes.

After all, dishes are prepared by cooks to be eaten; and if they do not taste good their appearance is of no importance. And paintings are to be admired, or to arouse interest, or to depict life, or appeal to the imagination; and if they fail to do so, the possession of other qualities makes no difference so far as the public is concerned.

The change in the manner of conducting the Carnegie International appears to have been designed to please the people—which is as it should be.

SPRINGFIELD DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 19.—Likely many poetized those white-washed lawn stones that curlicue New England greenswards. Best kept front yards in the world are here. And housekeeping as an art attains its zenith. Every window is an immaculate flutter of lace curtains. Every porch a dell.

I was interested in Winsted from whence I received as a midwest telegraph editor, fabulous versions of cows that gave cider and bull frogs that croaked high tenor. It is mainstreety, with plenty of accomplished whittlers and rockers. A fine hive for ridiculous yarns.

I never thought of tobacco fields in Connecticut, but acres of them gray the valleys with their protective covering of cheese cloth. Also huge warehouses, precisely latticed and racked with tobacco. No scrubby hillside paches here, featuring a lean-to, sick cow and sour well. Mother earth is generous.

Indeed farms suggest scenes from picture books, rolling, plump with orchards and capacious red barns. I often wonder if others like the cloying aroma of a barnyard. The mean squalor of cities is nowhere seen. Lazy rivers, gurgling brooks and wind run clean.

* * *

Most cities on the brink of becoming a metropolis suggest the bewildered novice suddenly thrust in stellar role. Springfield is exception—a bustling manufacturing center. One alpaca plant was blazing after midnight. No one seemed loafing and I warmed to the mind-your-own-business air.

* * *

We stopped at the Kimball, reminiscent of the old Burnett in Cincinnati. Little push button and flunkied flap doodle, but mellow hospitality. The dogs were admitted with no eyebrow lift. For years I've wanted to pay especial tribute to the most intelligent response of all in hotels here and abroad—room service. I have never in years of hotel living known them to make a mistake in meal orders. Yet these are employes the patrons never see. Or tip.

* * *

Amid the sun's sinking splendor we motored to Amherst—Dwight Morrow's college. On a beautiful upland, it's far more alluring than Yale. The campus trees, so old and gnarled, bespoke simplicity of an older mode. To go out into life feeling deeply rooted to Amherst must be comforting through the years.

* * *

Holyoke is another suburb ashine with cheery simplicity. We dined in a venerable roadside tavern, whose floorboards creak with the dignity of 148 years. The dinner, with enormous list of savory New England dishes, was 55 cents. The waitress, buxom, middle-aged, crossed the floor gingerly on tiptoe. Framed on the wall, George Washington's call for troops ending in the forlorn bravura: "God Save the United States!"

* * *

An enticingly clear night and sky powdered with stars. After dinner a drive up the winding roads of Mt. Tom. In one clearing we permitted city bred dogs to indulge a freedom they seldom enjoy—running at large unleashed. In Kasper Hauserish fashion, they displayed no interest in woodland things, merely hanging about our heels. But frisked and barked happily returning to the car.

* * *

Across the hotel court at a window rocker sat a white-haired lady. I smiled and bowed and she waved a blue-veined hand, remindful of many grandmothers whose last days' vision narrows to small horizons. My wife sent a bouquet she gathered along the roadside. When we departed she displayed it in a vase on the sill. It is difficult to interpolate into such apparent trivia the significance it deserves.

* * *

I was especially interested in Southbridge, Mass., a sprightly city along the way. From here my syndicated wares are sent in proof sheets to newspapers. The printery is part of the Southbridge News, a lively daily owned and edited by my syndicate chief, V. V. McNitt. Few newspaper structures offer simpler dignity. Of red brick, perched back on a peaceful knoll, its facade is graced by snow-white colonial pillars. There was an attractive maid typewriting at a window, at whom I shouted: "I'm one of yo' hands!"

But I did not check in. Anything that even suggests my job has of a sudden become abhorrent. I've become a food and sleep man.

The Human Side of the News

The Strange Case of Opal Whiteley, an American Girl Who Has Become a Princess In India

By EDWIN C. HILL

IN the sacrosanct files of the State Department in Washington lies buried a romantic secret I would give something to penetrate. It must be there, that secret, for one of the greatest Secretaries of State we have ever had signed his name to a certain document which had to do with the mystery. But it has gathered dust in the files, no doubt, and is apt to stay there.

Only a curious incident of just the other day revived recollection that secret there was. An American lady who was traveling in India came to the native state of Udaipur. There she paused in her journey, for she was entranced with the shining city, violet-crowned, set like a pearl in the jade hills. Its snow-white palaces rose sheer from turquoise lakes. Up and down its streets, with free and flowing stride, went stately women in swinging skirts of orange, and sworded Rajputs, and wild-eyed Bhils with bow on back and sheaf of arrows, and lepers begging in whining supplication, and caparisoned stallions, and sacred bulls.

And while the American lady sat entranced in her carriage half a troop of cavalry came toward her at a quick trot—lean, brown men on coal-black horses, all gay and glowing with brilliant trappings. And back of the fast-trotting horses and their splendid riders came a gleaming carriage. And in the carriage, very upright and aloof, under a silken parasol, was a raven-haired, dark-eyed, olive-skinned lady that the American traveler knew as surely as she knew her own name.

The lady in the carriage was Opal Whiteley, an American girl with a curious history, who had disappeared 10 years previously, and of whom little but the vaguest report had ever been heard since. Discreetly the traveler made inquiry and learned that the haughty lady in the carriage, escorted by the house cavalry of his royal highness, the Maharana of Udaipur, the highest ranking prince in all proud Rajputana, was a dweller in the palace and a near relation of the Maharana.

* * *

A Phenomenal Piece of Writing

AND that was all the traveler could learn. But her mind flashed back through the years to the time when Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, sprang a literary sensation by publishing the diary of a child of nine—the diary of Opal Whiteley. He printed it chapter by chapter and then brought it out in book form, to the delight even of the skeptical. For it was, for a child of nine at least, a perfectly prenomenal piece of writing in the genius of imagination which gave to animal pets the name of the gods of Olympus, and could attach to a pet lamb the staggering cognomen of Sophocles Diogenes. It was, indeed, the sensation of the literary world, this diary of nine-year-old Opal Whiteley—whatever opinion finally attached to its genuineness.

And the American lady who had been so amazed at the brilliant apparition in the streets of Udaipur recalled other odd things that she had heard—that Opal Whiteley, after submitting at the age of 19 or so the diary she asserted she had written at 9, had left the United States very secretly, traveling not with an ordinary passport but with the aid of a confidential document signed by an American Secretary of State and Sir Edward Grey, of England, for the British foreign office.

And eventually the tale got about that the strange, gifted child and woman, Opal Whiteley, was actually the daughter of a scion of the noble French line of Orleans and Artois, of royal blood, and of his wife, a daughter of the Maharana of Udaipur; and that she went straight to Udaipur in India, to her grandfather's palace, and there has remained ever since.

* * *

Living as Member Of Royal Family

DR. RUSHFORD WILLIAMS, foreign minister for His Highness the Maharajah of Patiala, also a native state of Rajputana, told this writer two years ago that a young American lady was actually residing at the Udaipur royal palace, evidently a member of the royal family. He knew her also as a brilliant contributor to London newspapers. And to this writer, also, Editor Sedgwick, of the Atlantic Monthly, contributed this extraordinary scrap of information regarding the mysterious Opal:

"She sent me from London a long account of her trip to India, where she has gone to follow in the footsteps of her supposed father, Prince Henri d'Orleans. To substantiate her story, she sent me many photographs, but wishing to place the matter beyond peradventure, I wrote to several maharajahs, and from the secretaries of at least two courts I got formal assurances of the correctness of her story.

"Opal never told me under what auspices she went, but I think beyond question that the old Orleans dowager, now dead, countenanced her. At any rate, she was everywhere accepted as an authentic princess, and I received several letters from Englishmen of position saying they had seen her at important levees, and that she had been shown signal favor in accompanying one maharajah, at least, on a tiger hunt, and with all the trappings appropriate to a visit of royalty."

So much for Mr. Ellery Sedgwick's contribution and the little other that is authentically known. Mystery it still remains, this strange tale of a child who sprang from a royal house of France and a royal house of India; who came somehow to America as an orphan and was brought up in a middle class family, and who made her way back by some sort of instinct to the land and level of her origin. The tale remains yet to be told.
